SINCLAIR GREATER PERIL THAN REDS, SENATOR NYE SAYS

North Dakotan Assails Use of Money for Control of Government and to Subvert Justice.

CRACKS U.S. POLICY FOR NICARAGUA

Declares That Unless Vare and Smith Are Denied Seats Every Office Will Be an Auction Block.

By the Associated Press.
BOSTON, Nov. 28.—Use of money for the control of Government constitutes the greatest menace to American democracy, Senator Nye, Republican independent of North Dakota, declared here in an address at the Ford Hall Forum last night.

Selecting the oil scandal as the most flagrant example of the use of the American dollar is given a American government, Senator Nye said there was involved "the purchase of the administrative branch of the Government"; large expenditures in the effort to stonewall a congressional investigation and finally an effort of wealth to cover it up in the criminal trial. "It never been an adroit capital placement," the North Dakotan Senator said, "but when men of the type of Sinclair and Burns are attempting to succeed in doing it, I can only confess myself as seeing odious when capital punishment is proper."

Greater Menace Than Reds.
They and their kind, with the men which are at their command, constitute a threat against well-being as a nation thousands of times greater than that created by all the 'Reds' in creation combined! They and their kind have no regard for justice except in its use against foes. Just as they regard with utter contempt insofar as they themselves concerned."

The Senator viewed the oil scandal as a natural culmination of a situation where he contended he had wealthy bought favors of government by liberal contributions to "war chests" of the two major political parties during national campaigns. Other fruits of the session, he said, were "the fixing of tax bills" in favor of the wealthy protection of American interests abroad by sending armed forces into Nicaragua, Mexico and Central America.

Says Senate Faces Challenge.
Senate in Nicaragua, China and India, tax legislation, the Vare and Smith cases, the Fall-Sinclair making mockery of justice, and other developments to thoroughly awaken Americans to the real threat being made against them," Senator Nye added, "and cause them to accept the change which wealth is offering every day. If they will accept that change, they will first voice general indignation. An indignant people will create an indignant press and an administration which holds so fast upon our economic and political life."

Senator Nye said the Senate had "wonderful opportunity" to strike this curse in American politics" by settling the issues involving in question of seating William S. Vare of Pennsylvania and Frank Smith of Illinois. He predicted that both would be denied seats, "and comes from Illinois, the seat of Samuel Insull, of the true trust," the Senator said. "So it is insult of his kind that he is not invited to invest a quarter of a million dollars in his candidacy. How do you suppose such would vote upon a resolution calling for investigation of the true trust?"

"There comes from Pennsylvania a seat in the Senate, claiming right to it as a result of that Pennsylvania election in which all the way from $5,000,000 to $10,000 was expended to influence voters of that State."

Says Noyls for President.
Tell you that if these men are denied the seats which they now move much closer to that when every public office in the Post-Dispatch will be placed on the auction block and virtually knocked down to the highest bidder. This will last the next few weeks and determine who is in our service, and particularly will it determine the prospect of Government being retained and restored to the interests of the people."

Hindu Police Take Widow From Funeral Pyre Rites

Woman Who Attempts Self Immolation Is Rescued After 2-Days' Opposition From Mob of Co-Religionists.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—After suffering intense agony in the flames of her husband's funeral pyre in an attempt to perform the ancient rite of the sutttee—self immolation of the widow with the body of the husband—a Hindu widow at Barth in the Patna district of India was rescued by the police, a dispatch to the Daily Mail from Allahabad, India, says. The police experienced difficulty in rescuing the woman because of a hostile Hindu mob.

On learning of the widow's intention, 5,000 Hindus gathered around the funeral pyre on the banks of the Ganges. They cheered as she mounted the pyre and took her husband's body in her arms. The local police tried to prevent her but the Hindus interfered.

The living woman and her dead husband lay burning on top of the mound.

By the Associated Press.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 28.—When the gun boomed out in salute to the late Premier Bratianu, as his body was borne through the capital yesterday, 6-year-old King Michael, who had been kept at home, turned to his mother and said: "Oh, mamma, do you hear the cannons? Has war come?"

Princess Helen replied reassuringly: "No, no, my child. Peace has come to your great good friend, Mr. Bratianu. He is dead and the nation is saluting him for the last time."

The Senator viewed the oil scandal as a natural culmination of a situation where he contended he had wealthy bought favors of government by liberal contributions to "war chests" of the two major political parties during national campaigns. ## COMMITTEE SETS MARCH 15 AS DATE OF TAX REDUCTION

DEMOCRATS, WHO WANT CUT DEFERRED UNTIL 1929, OVERRIDDEN BY REPUBLICANS, 13 TO 10.

THREAT OF FIGHT ON FLOOR OF HOUSE

GARNER OF TEXAS TO RESIST WAYS AND MEANS BODY'S DECISION ON CORPORATION LEVY.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—After a strict party vote, the House Ways and Means Committee agreed today to recommend that the proposed reduction in the tax on corporation incomes be made effective on tax payments due next March 15.

The committee's action was taken over the protest of all the Democratic members, who contend that the rate cut from 13 1/2 to 11 1/2 per cent should not be made effective until March, 1929. The vote was 13 to 10, Republicans against 10 Democrats.

ARGUMENT ON BOTH SIDES.

The Democrats argued the corporations already had passed the 1928 tax on to the consumer and by making the reduction effective on income earned in 1927, the corporations alone would benefit. Preliminary contention that corporations should receive the benefit of the proposed reduction as soon as possible.

The committee also voted to reduce the tax on the income of insurance companies from 12 1/2 to 11 1/2 per cent. It was said, however, that this would result in a loss in revenue of only $1,600,000.

REPRESNTATIVES HIGHLIGHT.

Representative Garner of Texas, ranking Democrat on the committee, said after the meeting that he expected the corporation would benefit from the reduction. He believed the corporation would not return the consumers' extra taxes forced upon them to the makers of the products.

Chairman Green said he expected proposed reductions effective 30 days after enactment of the new tax bill, as had been the procedure in recent years.

$205,000 DIAMOND HOLDUP

TWO MEN AND A WOMAN ROB CLEVELAND (O.) JEWELERS.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 28.—Two men and a woman held up clerks in the jewelry store of Swissky brothers in a downtown office building late today and escaped with gems said to be owned by owners to be worth $205,000.

A woman entered the store and asked to see some uncut diamonds. Two wallets were laid out on the counter. The woman was examined, and the two men entered the store and held up the jewelers and stole the diamonds.

The store is on the sixth floor of a downtown office building. One of the robbers menaced customers of the store, while his companion bound clerks with tape and forced them to lie on the floor. George Cross, a diamond salesman who entered during the holdup, was taken to a rear room and bound. The robbers took from him $10,000 in gems, Cross said. The robbers then looted the safe.

Four dead, four seriously injured and 20 slightly hurt today stood still at the toll of a head-on collision at Dockrill, 56 miles west of here, between a Canadian Pacific passenger train and a freight train.

The crash was attributed to the failure of the freight to take the siding as it neared Dockrill station yesterday afternoon.

The dead are W. Burnett, engineer of the passenger train, and three unidentified passengers listed as foreigners. The majority of the injured were immigrants.

The two engines left the track, rolling down an embankment and the following mail, baggage and passenger cars of the passenger train were badly smashed. Fire broke out in the forward cars but it is believed all of the 122 passengers, not accounted for in the list of dead and injured, escaped.

INJUNCTION DENIED TO BAR OKLAHOMA SPECIAL SESSION

Judge Chambers Bases Order, However, on Fact That Action Is Against the Wrong Parties.

By the Associated Press.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 28.—District Judge T. G. Chambers today declined to issue a temporary injunction intended to prevent the convening of a special session of the Oklahoma Legislature Dec. 6. Judge Chambers told applicants they had selected the wrong defendants in seeking to restrain four leaders of the extra session movement from presenting illegal expense claims in connection with the session.

"I you will bring an action, seeking to restrain the proper authorities from expending any funds, I may entertain it," Judge Chambers added.

A demur to the petition for injunction today by Earl A. Brown, member of the House from Carter County, acting on behalf of Representative Leslie Cardwell, one of the five defendants in the injunction action brought by John Simpson, president of the Oklahoma farmers' union and a taxpayer.

Cardwell is opposed to the session and was made a defendant with the four-house leaders in charge of the plans for the session in order to open grounds for legal attack on application for the restraining order.

The Legislature could meet only in a biennial session or in a special session on the call of the Governor, Representative F. H. Reilly of Shawnee, argued.

H. Tom Kight of Claremore; E. P. Hill of McAlester; Robert C. Graham of Oklahoma City, and Tom Johnson of Antlers are the leaders in the extra session movement, having issued a formal call for the House to convene Dec. 6 to its own motion to inquire into various charges against Gov. Johnstone and his officers. He and Kight were present in court in order to represent themselves.

Simpson in a statement said his reason for bringing the injunction action was to have the question of the Legislature's right to assemble without the Governor's call settled in the courts before the expense of a session had been incurred.

By the Associated Press.
MAYLANDING, N. J., Nov. 28.—A jury of seven men and five women will hear the case of Mrs. Margaret Lillendahl and Willis Beach, charged with the murder of the woman's aged husband. The jury was selected in an hour and a quarter today.

The other jurors are: Mrs. Grace Wingate, Ventnor City; Irvin Adams of Pleasantville, automobile man; Enoch Adams, Ventnor City, bank employee; Harry Van Sant, an Atlantic City boat builder; Ella M. Dietrich, Atlantic City; Mary Frables, Atlantic City; Harry J. Smith, Atlantic City clerk; Herbert C. Test, Atlantic City newspaper man; Carl W. ## COMMITTEE NAMED TO APPRaise U. S. REALTY

Business Men Take Steps for Obtaining New Federal Building in St. Louis.

A committee of real estate men appointed by a committee of civic leaders today, met this afternoon to appraise the value of three pieces of downtown property owned by the Federal Government which may be sold to provide for a new and monumental Federal Building.

Senator Hawes has requested the appraisal, to be in his hands by Dec. 10, for use in dealing with the Treasury Department at Washington as to plans for the new structure.

The civic group, comprising Harry B. Bickel, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Louis M. Hall, collector of the Customs and custodian of Federal property; Charles E. Valler, president of the Merchants' Exchange; F. M. Mayfield, president of the Associated Dealers; J. L. Barngrave, president-elect; and W. W. Butts, retiring president of the Real Estate Exchange; Thomas N. Dysart, president of the Industrial Club, and John G. Lonsdale, president of the Clearing House Association, expects to receive the report of the real estate committee tomorrow.

Real Estate Men Named.

The valuation fixed by the real estate men, some of whom met with the civic group at the Chamber of Commerce this morning, will be submitted to the directors of the various organizations mentioned for approval. If and when approved, it will be transmitted to the Treasury Department.

Mr. Lillendahl drove her aged husband to that secluded spot," he said, "and there Beach killed him."

Beach fled through the undergrowth as he reached the main and where his car was parked. He pointed his hands to his mouth and signaled her that he was safe away."

"Too-hoo" he failed, meaning "I'm safe now. Go ahead and sound the alarm and tell your boy we're two Negroes attacking you. I'm killing your husband. I'm off, fit up my alibi."

Milk Truck Driver Testifies.

X. C. Woolman, a milk truck driver, told of driving along the road, near Hammonton, Aug. 15, the day Dr. Lillendahl was killed. He identified Mrs. Lillendahl as a woman he saw there, for help. She said two Negroes had attacked her, Woolman said.

The witness said he noticed a Negro tied to a bush near where Mrs. Lillendahl was standing. The State is expected to attempt to prove that the white race struck the Negro so that Dr. Lillendahl would know where to drive where Beach was waiting to commit the murder. Woolman told finding Dr. Lillendahl dead in his car. He said a search was made for footprints but none was found.

Woolman was followed by James Licklider, who was riding with when he met Mrs. Lillendahl and who corroborated Woolman's testimony. He added that Lillendahl made no mention of his husband being dead or even her until a State trooper arrived with Wootton found

Alvin Ricci of Hammonton, who, the State trooper, said he only understood Mrs. Lillendahl may have been robbed. He said Mrs. Lillendahl fainted when she told her husband was dead and revived immediately.

Lillendahl's defense will mainly of an attempt to cover up her story that two Negroes held her and her husband while they were motoring four outside of Hammonton, seized and shot her husband when he tried to rescue her.

M. Alvin Ruggles, an attorney with offices at Fourteenth and Chestnut streets, was barred from Judge Beck's division of Police Court today in an effort to raise a $10 fee to client after Judge Beck had questioned the client, Glenn Licklider of 2607 Agnes avenue.

Attorney Ruggles appeared for Licklider, charged with driving on the wrong side of a street car, and asked for a continuance. Judge Beck asked Licklider about his arrangement with Ruggles. Licklider said he had given Ruggles $10 to pay his fine. Ruggles denied that this was the understanding, asserting that the $10 was a fee. Judge Beck informed Ruggles he did not want him to appear in his court.

$500 VOTED IN ST. LOUIS TO AID STRIKING MINERS

Central Trades and Labor Union Also Announces Wearing Apparel Is Being Accepted.

A motion seeking from the Missouri Supreme Court a rehearing of the case in which the Court a week ago held against the city's efforts to tax seven insurance companies under the general taxing laws of the State, was filed in City Councilor City today by City Councilor Muench and Associate City Councilor Dolan.

The particular case in which the decision was filed by the American Automobile Insurance Co., which sought to quash an assessment of $375,000. By agreement similar suits by six other companies were determined by the decision in the one.

The principal point at issue in the motion for a new trial is that the company sought to escape taxation by deducting its unpaid policy claims twice. The city contends insurance companies are reached for taxation under the general tax law.

The Properties Involved.

The properties under consideration are the present Federal Building, occupying the important block bounded by Eighth, Ninth, Olive and Locust streets; the old Customs House at Third and Olive streets, and a lot at the southeast corner of Fourth and Chestnut streets which the City has bought some time ago with expectation of erecting a new structure there.

New sites which have been suggested are on or adjoining the projected Memorial Plaza, which will lie between Twelfth and Fifteenth street, Olive and Market streets. The late Paul Brown, office building owner, had advocated reconstruction and enlargement of the existing building at Eighth and Olive.

Speakers favoring the donation said the condition of the striking miners, numbering approximately 500,000, is more serious than at any time and that to lose the strike would be disastrous to the American Federation of Labor.

Sam Snyder, delegate of the Photo Engravers' Union, made a report on a referendum vote to a mutual benefit life insurance plan proposed by his union at its last national convention. The vote, taken by mail, resulted in 9444 for and 1722 against the plan.

KANSAS DEMANDS EQUAL TREATMENT IN FLOOD CONTROL

Gov. Paulen Tells House Committee Practically All Rivers in That State Now Are Overflowing.

DELEGATION FROM MISSOURI PRESENT

Supervision of Army Over Inland Waters Likely to Precipitate Fight in Congress.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Kansas feels that it deserves as much consideration in flood relief as any other state, Gov. Paulen today told the House Flood Control Committee.

Flood losses in Kansas since the fall of 1926 amounted to $15,466,000, he said, adding that "practically all our rivers are overflowing at the present time."

Senator Curtis of Kansas introduced Gov. Paulen, who first presented copies of a survey made by him and George S. Knapp of the State Board of Agriculture, showing losses caused by recent overflows of the five major rivers and tributaries of Kansas.

In discussing relief, Gov. Paulen said he felt any solution of the problem must be based on Federal aid and State contributions. The State of Kansas has been negligent in past, he said, and is partly to blame for the present situation, but now stands ready to face the problem for the future.

Floods Lower Farm Values.
Hardships caused to Kansas farmers by floods were pictured to the committee by W. Carlton Hall, of Coffeyville, Bureau Federation and other agricultural organizations. He advocated a policy on flood control embodying not only major waters, but on all rivers and tributaries running into them. Floods in Kansas have depressed farm land values in some regions by as much as $50 an acre, he said.

The committee today entered its fourth week of hearings.

Gov. Sam A. Baker of Missouri, together with 11 levee board officials, was here as a witness.

The Mississippi flood control organization will continue the presentation of its proposals during the remainder of the week's hearings with levee board officials from every section of the river appearing before the House Committee. In the opinion of members of the committee the views of the levee officials may constitute in many respects the most important testimony of the hearings.

Army Control an Issue.

Chairman Reid of Illinois of the House Committee has indicated that the proposals of the levee officials will receive attention. A representation in the past dual general-local flood control along the river, will be utilized as a "yardstick" to measure the feasibility and adequacy of the Army engineers' program. With the Army engineers' report being drafted, there has been indication of opposition among the members of Congress in the continuance of the Army's supervision of the flood control work, and a fight on this question is almost certain when the flood legislation is introduced.

Together with this probable controversy, there are two other outstanding issues in the devising of the flood legislation that may impede its speedy enactment by Congress unless included in the measure by the committee.

One is the desire of Western arid states through which main tributaries of the Mississippi course to have reservoirs established at these points to supply irrigation and power development. The other is the view that the Mississippi valley alone should not benefit from flood legislation, but the Federal control should be established on every major stream of the country.

Centenary M. E. Church Unaware of Fact Till After Dr. Tadlock's Death.

The Rev. Dr. Charles W. Tadlock, pastor of Centenary Methodist Church, departed after morning services yesterday for St. Joseph, Mo., where his mother died Saturday. She was 80 years old.

Dr. Tadlock taught his Sunday School class yesterday and preached the morning sermon, with only a few of his more intimate friends in the congregation having knowledge of his mother's death. It was only after the pastor's departure that the congregation was told of his mother's death. Dr. Tadlock went to St. Joseph by automobile.

Disappears on Trip to St. Louis.
Police yesterday were asked to search for Otto E. House, 45 years old, of Maryland Heights, Mo., who came to St. Louis several weeks ago to visit friends, but who has not been seen here. Cecil W. McBane, a friend, of Maryland Heights, made the request.

While they were talking, Cham-elin was pushed inside by a young man who covered him with a revolver. The robber then bound

BROKER SHOT BY WIFE WHOM HE FOUND WITH ANOTHER MAN
He Deserved Bullet, She Declares, but She Is Glad He Will Not Die.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—John M. Isbell, La Salle street mortgage broker, was shot when he went to his estranged wife's home and found Charles Davis with her. Isbell was accompanied by detectives who told Mrs. Isbell and Davis that they must go to police headquarters. Mrs. Isbell shot her husband when he began to demand divorce. She fired twice, one shot striking Isbell in the back and the other narrowly missing one of the officers.

Mrs. Isbell is 40 years old, the mother of two girls, the oldest 9. The Isbells were married in 1910, separating two years ago. Her suit for divorce, which asks for $500 a month alimony, is on file in a Chicago court, a hearing having been set for tomorrow.

Isbell's wound was said to be not serious. "I'm glad my husband will not die," Mrs. Isbell said, "but on account of the children, if ever a man deserved a bullet, he did."

WOMAN DRIVER HURT AT CROSSING DIES

Miss Leah M. Huber, 42, was struck by Frisco Train Friday. Auto demolished.

Miss Leah M. Huber, 42 years old, a dressmaker, died at St. Mary's Hospital yesterday of injuries suffered Friday evening when her automobile was struck by a Frisco passenger train at the Berry road crossing in Webster Groves.

Miss Huber, who resided at #705 Schofield avenue, St. Louis County, apparently failed to hear a warning bell at the crossing. Her Ford coupe was struck squarely by the train and demolished, and Miss Huber was thrown out. At the hospital it was found she had suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries. An inquest will be held today.

Two Hurt When Auto Crashes Into Traffic Signal.

John Magee, 603A Eastgate avenue, and Miss Burnette Norman, a waitress who was riding with him, were injured early today, when a machine driven by Magee ran into the automatic traffic signal at Compton avenue and Locust boulevard.

Miss Bertha Muhrman, a clerk, 501 Idaho avenue, suffered skull injury and was severely lacerated when run down by a machine driven by John Fusco, a lamplighter, 5045 South Thirty-seventh street, as she crossed Grand boulevard at Delor street last night. A few minutes later, as Miss Pearl Fischer, 101 Dewey street, was crossing, a taxicab struck her. She was internally injured and suffered slight brain concussion.

A police machine, driven by Patrolman William Soehr of the Mounted District, collided with an automobile driven by Charles Cooper, a plumber, 4618 Gravois avenue, at Dewey street and Meramec avenue, early today. Cooper suffered injuries to his back and Patrolman James Quinn, riding with Soehr, suffered fractured ribs.

As William Obermark, 76, 1512A Cass avenue, was crossing at Fifteenth street and Cass avenue last night, a machine driven by Isadore Beck, 5871 Marlott avenue, ran him down. Obermark's skull is fractured. Daniel Leary, 2162A Allerton avenue, suffered fractures of both legs when run down while crossing in the 1500 block of Cass avenue, early last night.

Mrs. Rosie Bonmarito, 1619 North Sixteenth street, suffered fractures of the nose and cheek bone yesterday when the machine her husband was driving skidded from the St. Charles Rock road, just west of the city limits, into a tree.

Mrs. George Merrill, of 6209 Washington boulevard, wife of the president of the Merrill Drug Co., was seriously injured in an automobile accident Saturday near Peoria, Ill. It was learned today. Blinded by the headlights of an approaching machine, Merrill collided with it, and his car ran off the road near a culvert and dropped 25 feet into a gully.

Mrs. Merrill was thrown from the machine and suffered skull injury and broken ribs. She was taken to Proctor Hospital in Peoria. Merrill was slightly cut and bruised. Their daughter Jane, 16 years old, suffered a sprained wrist.

The Merrells were returning from Madison, Wis., after spending Thanksgiving day with a daughter who is a student at Wisconsin University.

Granite City Residents Hurt in Texas Auto Collision.

Mrs. Jewell E. Kircher, 1229 E street, Granite City, was critically injured and her husband seriously hurt in a collision of automobiles in which one woman was killed and four others besides Mr. and Mrs. Kircher were injured, near Houston, Tex., last night. Mrs. Kircher, who is a native of Houston, stated, is not expected to live. The woman killed, who was riding with the Kirchers, was Mrs. Fannie Wannall of Houston.

Once a person realizes the wonderful properties in cascara, no other laxative in the market would ever be considered.

It is the trick to "clean out the bowels." Dozens of things will do that. But a little natural cascara purifies the system clear through. Cascara even has a tonic effect on skin. Renders perspiration as non-offensive as so much dew! The old fashioned way was to take a laxative, but then they take the mucous membrane along with the waste matter! Mineral oils are gentler, but they have to be taken with a lot of poisons for the blood to carry off through the pores. But when you take cascara, you take the oil and all the poisons by normal muscular action of the bowels.

If you have the habit of taking medicine, especially for colds, or even for auto-intoxicication, stop it. For a candy cascara is a delightful form in which to take cascara. Children love it. And the taste appeals most grown-ups to have "more."

And what a comfort to know you are in that clean, wholesome condition that doesn't wait with any sickness or trouble. Try a cascara tonight and have a nice next day and for days after! With the skin fresh and fragrant. All druggists, 10c and 25c.

OXFORD, England, Nov. 28.—Miss Elizabeth Houghton, younger daughter of the Ambassador to the Court of St. James's, is an undergraduate at Oxford this year, where the rules are much stricter than those of American universities.

Women students at Oxford may go with young men friends to the movies, to tea or on a motor ride only if they have permission from the principal of the college and if another girl goes along. This year Miss Houghton may not have her own car, and next year, although she may have one, she may not drive it more than five miles from Oxford. She may dance only at college halls, may lunch or dine only in certain restaurants and may not go up in an airplane. Like the other girl students, she wears black cap and gown at lectures and tu-

ANNUAL SHOE TRADE CONVENTION OPENS

Manufacturers and Wholesalers Meeting Jointly With Retailers' Association.

"Shoe shame" was the new phrase on the lips of shoe merchants from many states who crowded the corridors of downtown hotels today for the fourth annual style show and convention of the St. Louis Shoe Manufacturers and Wholesalers' Association, meeting jointly with the Southwestern Retailers' Association.

The shoe men, several thousand of whom are already in the city, came to preach a gospel of beauty in shoes for women and men among themselves before passing on to the public fear of what has been dubbed "shoe shame."

The chief prophet of "shoe shame" was Jesse Adler of New York, head of a large chain of shoe stores, and of the shoe trade's National Style Committee. He came prepared to tell the convention that "shoe shame" causes such dreadful results as "loss of dress, dress, dress."

Trend Toward Simpler Modes.

Although the shoe men, taking a cue from the automobile industry, were ready to launch a movement for beauty in shoes and style consciousness among men as well as women, the spring styles exhibited by scores of manufacturers at Hotel Statler, convention headquarters, showed a trend toward simpler modes, with strong emphasis on colors.

New colors that will be tested in the style displays are: White, jade, honeydew, rose blush, marigold, salmon, light gray, plaza gray and stroller tan.

For men, Adler said, the prevailing style next spring will be black and tan oxfords, ranging from brogues to custom-looking types, including what is known as the square toe and French last. Tan shoes will range from medium to brownish tints.

The spring style pageant in footwear, as evolved by the manufacturers, is being exhibited to the shoe men in its full panoply of new styles and color for the first time this afternoon, noted Statler. Thereafter, there will be two showings of styles daily for the duration of the three-day meeting.

Plan $4,000,000 for Publicity. Registrants of the visitors from 38 states, but chiefly from the Southwest, filled the morning hours. At noon there was a luncheon, with Arthur E. Ebbs of St. Louis, vice president of the Swope Shoe Co., and president of the Southwestern Shoe Retailers' Association, presiding. Ebbs was host last night at a dinner at the Missouri Athletic Association for 150 merchants, manufacturers and others affiliated with the shoe industry.

In the gathering last night was broached a plan to spend $4,000,000 to herald shoes and styles to the nation. It will be one of the chief topics of the coming October meeting of Trade.

Predictions of prosperity for the nation as a whole and optimistic views for the shoe industry in particular came from D. W. Martin of St. Louis, president of the St. Louis Shoe Manufacturers and Wholesalers' Association; Henry W. Cook of Syracuse, N. Y., president of the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' Association; A. H. Gueting of Philadelphia, president of the National Shoe Retailers' Association, and E. B. Terhune of Boston, president of the "Boot and Shoe Recorder."

Terhune, who as a member of Secretary Hoover's advisory committee, has been studying economic conditions abroad, said the next five years in this country would be a period of prosperity and individual welfare unequalled heretofore.

Among shoe retailers in the gathering was Meyer Swope of St. Louis, head of the Swope Shoe Co., hailed by his fellow merchants as the "dean of the shoe retailers of the country." He has been in the business 62 years. With him at the president's dinner last night was Clarence Wade of Brockton, Mass., head of the Stacy-Adams Shoe Co., who got his start in the industry here in 1878 as an employee of the Swope Shoe Co.

Others present were Harry of Wheeling, W. Va., president of the Ohio Valley Shoe Retailers' Association; Lon Tuffy, San Antonio, president of the Texas Shoe Retailers; W. E. Shine, Birmingham, Ala., president of the Southeastern Shoe Retailers, and Everett Brady, president of the New England Shoe Retailers.

The robber, who had red hair, pushed past several persons in the downstairs doorway, mounted to the second floor, and, sticking his revolver through a cut-out space in the door, called to Smith: "Open this door!"

Smith opened the door. The hold-up man backed Smith to a rear room and locked him in, running away with Smith's strongest box.

THE NEW FORD CAR

An announcement of unusual importance to every automobile owner

FORD

"NINETEEN years ago we made and sold the first Model T Ford car. In announcing it to the public we said:

"We will build a motor car for the great multitude. It will be large enough for the family, but small enough for the individual to run and care for. It will be constructed of the best materials, by the best men to be hired, after the simplest designs modern engineering can devise. But it will be so low in price that no man making a good salary will be unable to own one."

"If I were starting in business today, or asked to restate my policy, I would not change one sentence or one word of that original announcement. In plain, simple language it gives the reason for the very existence of the Ford Motor Company and explains its growth.

"IN THE last nineteen years we have made 15,000,000 Ford cars and added to the world nearly 300,000,000 mobile horse-power. Yet I do not consider the machines which bear my name simply as machines. I take them as concrete evidence of the working out of a theory of business which I hope is something more than a theory of business—a theory that looks toward making this world a better place in which to live.

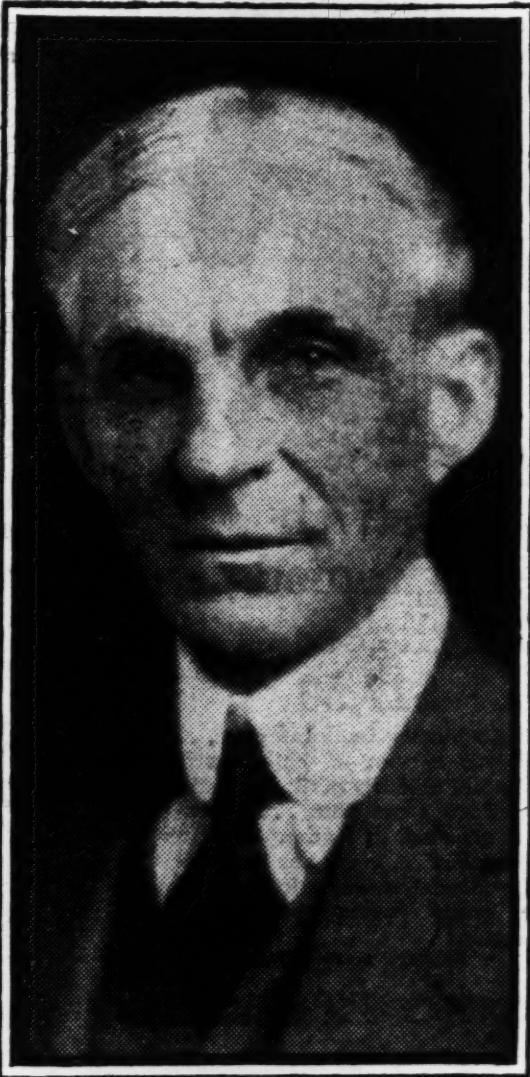

"The Model T Ford car was a pioneer. There was no conscious public need of motor cars when we first conceived it. There were few good roads and only the adventurous few could be induced to buy an automobile.

"The Ford car blazed the way for the motor industry and started the movement for good roads. It broke down the barriers of time and distance and helped to place education within the reach of all. It gave people more leisure. It helped people everywhere to do more and better work in less time and enjoy doing it. It did a great deal, I am sure, to promote the growth and progress of this country.

"We are still proud of the record of the Model T Ford car. If we were not, we would not have continued to manufacture it so long. But 1927 is not 1908. It is not 1915. It is not even 1926.

We have built a new car to meet modern conditions

"We realize that conditions in this country have so greatly changed in the last few years that further refinement in motor car construction is desirable. So we have built a new car. To put it simply—we have built a new and different Ford to meet new and different conditions.

"We believe the new Ford car, which will be officially announced on Friday of this week, is as great an improvement in motor car building as the Model T Ford was in 1908.

Smart new low lines and beautiful colors

"The new Ford is more than a car for the requirements of today. It goes farther than that. It anticipates the needs of 1928, of 1929, of 1930.

"The new Ford car is radically different from Model T. Yet the basic Ford principles of economy of production and quality of product have been retained. There is nothing quite like the new Ford anywhere in quality and price.

"The new Ford has exceptional beauty of line and color because beauty of line and color has come to be considered, and I think rightly, a necessity in a motor car today. Equally important is the mechanical beauty of the engine. Let us not forget this mechanical beauty when we consider the beauty of the new Ford.

"Every part of it has been tested and retested. There is no guessing as to whether it will be a successful model. It has to be. There is no way it can escape being so, for it represents the sum total of all we have learned about motor car building in the making of 15,000,000 automobiles.

"The price of the new Ford is low in accordance with the established Ford policy. I hold that it is better to sell a large number of cars at a reasonably small margin of profit than to sell a few cars at a large margin of profit.

"We never forget that people who buy Ford cars are the people who helped to make this business big. It has always been our policy to share our profits with our customers. In one year our profits were so much larger than we expected that we voluntarily returned $50 to each purchaser of a car. We could never have done that if this business had been conducted for the sole benefit of stockholders rather than to render service to the public.

"No other automobile can duplicate the new Ford car at the Ford price because no other manufacturer does business the way we do.

"We make our own steel—we make our own glass—we mine our own coal—we make virtually every part used in the Ford car. But we do not charge a profit on any of these items or from these operations. We would not be playing fair with the public if we did so. Our only business is the automobile business. Our only profit is on the automobile we sell.

"WE ARE able to sell this new Ford car at a low price because we have found new ways to give you greater value without a great increase in our own costs.

"We did not set out to make a new car to sell at such-and-such a figure. We decided on the kind of car we wanted to make and then found ways to produce it at a low price.

"The new Ford car, as I have said, will be officially announced on Friday of this week. In appearance, in performance, in comfort, in safety, in all that goes to make a good car, it will bear out everything I have said here. We consider it our most important contribution thus far to the progress of the motor industry, to the prosperity of the country, and to the daily welfare of millions of people."

COUNTY TO VOTE
ON $12,750,000
BONDS TOMORROW

From 6 A. M. to 7 P. M.
121 Polling Places Will Be Open — 49,436 Persons Are Registered.

EACH OF FOUR BOND
ITEMS SEPARATE

Voters May Approve Some and Reject Others, but All Are Expected to Stand or Fall Together.

St. Louis County's 121 precincts polling places will be open from 6 a. m. to 7 p. m. tomorrow for the voters to decide whether $12,750,- 000 in bonds for public improvements shall be issued.

The items are: $10,000,000 for building and improving main highways in the county; $750,000 for a new courthouse and jail; $1,000,000 for a public county hospital and $1,000,000 for buying and equipping parks.

Each item is separate and it will be possible for the electorate to approve some and reject others. Observers think it is likely that all four will stand or fall together.
A two-thirds majority of votes cast will be necessary for passage of each item.

The first proposition on road bonds will consist of two clauses:
"For incurring of county indebtedness for road and bridge purposes" and the other, "Against incurring of county indebtedness for road and bridge purposes." The voter will scratch the clause he does not favor. Each of the other propositions will consist of a single clause, followed by "yes" or
"no" and the voter will scratch
"yes" if he favors the bonds or scratch "no" if he opposes them.

49,436 Eligible to Vote
The total number of persons registered in the county and they are the only persons eligible for this election.
Opponents of the bond issue have asserted there are as many as 50,000 persons who have not had opportunity to register, but election officials and bond proponents have deprecated this. Early this month, opportunity was given for voters who were on the poll books at the last registration, in June, 1924, and who had moved from precinct to precinct since then to register their names at their new addresses. Many voters transferred their original precincts did not have to be transferred.

Speculation on the Vote.
Supporters and opponents of the bonds alike have urged a heavy vote in the hope of success. While one estimate of the probable total vote has been 15,000, some observers hope for 20,000 to 20,000 ballots to be cast, depending upon the weather. If there are 20,000 votes, 20,000 of them will have to be favorable to pass the bond issue. In the special election 13 months ago, at which St. Louis County defeated the proposed merger with the city, 24,000 out of 54,000 voters then registered in the county went to the polls, and at the general election a week later there were 25,000 votes.

The bond propositions were measured by the County Chamber of Commerce, which circulated the actions calling for the special election. Numerous other organizations have expressed their support, but the campaign in support of the issue has been carried on largely by the chamber. It has sent speakers to many meetings.
Today it sent telegrams to about 500 selected voters, reminding them to go to the polls and urging available votes. It will have workers campaigning in the field tomorrow.

No Organized Opposition.
No organized opposition has appeared, but three county residents have spoken and written against the bonds. Their chief objections are that the county government is not prepared to handle the work, that many qualified voters have not been allowed to register, and that good government and law and government should take precedence.
They have not denied that the improvements sought are either needed or worth while. These opponents are George W. Baumhoff of Keyes Summit; Lee A. Hall of Webster Groves, president of the Webster County Taxpayers' League; and John A. Nolan of Webster Groves, who has appeared as attorney for the league. They have been finding numerous other opponents who have not appeared publicly.

In 1925, county voters defeated a bond issue of $5,000,000 for roads and $715,000 for a courthouse and jail. In 1916, they approved a $2,000,000 issue for roads which has been expended, but which was tied up for several years by litigation brought by a citizen.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—More than a half million aliens were admitted to the United States during the 1927 fiscal year, the Labor Department announced today, and the number was considerably greater than during the previous year.The figures were 538,000 admissions in 1927, and 496,106 admissions in 1926.Secretary of Labor Davis, from whose annual report the extracts were made public, added that the foreign population gain indicated was lessened by reasons of the departure during 1927 of 253,508aliens for their foreign homes.
Further, of the half-million 1927 foreigners entering the country, 202,826 were tourists, or aliens returning from temporary trips abroad. Nearly one-half of all the newcomers to the United States in 1927 were from the American continent, Canada and Mexico now being the greatest source of immigrants.

NEW RUDYARD KIPLING POEM

First of "Brazilian Sketches" Published in Magazine.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The first of a new series of poems by Rudyard Kipling is published today by Liberty magazine. The poem, which has been copyrighted in the United States by the English author and poet, is entitled "Brazilian Sketches."

The poem speaks to many meetings.

It may send telegrams to about selected voters, reminding
them to go to the polls and urging votable votes. It will have workers campaigning in the field nowhere.

No Organized Opposition.

No organized opposition has ap-

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in the cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress, reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Fearful Contemplation, Tearful Supplication.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WOULD that we knew what is in the great and good mind of Calvin Coolidge. That way alone we might be assured that we could live prosperously through those ominous years from 1928 to 1932.

Surely Mr. Coolidge would not manifest such reticence if he but knew how our fate hangs on each little word that he drops from his great and firm lips. He must think of his countrymen and self-sacrifice. Just as the rolls around and the Republican hosts have gathered he must listen to the clamor of his countrymen. He must forget about third terms. His country calls. We must draft him!

Otherwise what is going to happen to all of us? Where will the Wall street stocks go? What, oh what, will happen to our Mellon-protected interests? Our stone wall tariff? Our marines in Nicaragua and our oil wells in Mexico? How will the farmers be reconciled to his fate without the heartening reassurance that Mr. Coolidge feels for him?

Oh, woe is me, what shall we do when we hear no more his voice over the radio?

It is a fearful thing to contemplate. A Coolidgeless United States. Let us not "choose" for an answer. He must run. The country must be saved at all costs.

The Thanksgiving Game.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE football game between St. Louis T. U. and Washington was a welcome revival of sport between our two great universities. It was evidenced by the vast throng of nearly 20,000 who hurried away from Thanksgiving feasts to enjoy the contest. The game was typical of clean sportsmanship from start to finish and, while both sides suffered penalties for minor infractions, there was no evidence of tactics very often resorted to in the name of sport.

It was certainly an inspiring and refreshing spectacle to see such a holiday crowd, divided naturally by sentiment, each side cheering and applauding the work of the other, the players, the cheerleaders and the bands. Let there be more of this spirit in the future.

Oralism and the Sign Language.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE League of Women Voters declared recently that every large public day school for the deaf has discarded the manual and the combined methods in favor of the oral method for the mentally normal child. As a matter of fact many of these schools continue to employ the manual and the combined methods, which they contend is due to the desire to learn from what source the league obtained such sweeping information.

The oral method means that the sign language is forbidden while the pupil is being taught pure oralism. I strongly favor the oral method only for possible cases. I mean for those so-called semi-mutes and also those who show a real aptitude for the oral method. I have encouraged such persons. If a deaf-born person wants to learn lip reading it is for his own sake. For the certain number of deaf-born who totally or partially hear, the combined method and also the manual are quite necessary and correct. An attempt to experiment on a child born deaf and dumb with the oral method alone is very unkind and unscientific and a mischievous waste of time.

The deaf-born child after three or four years under rigid instruction of a pure oralist may be found a hopeless case and to have lost his four growing years in education. He becomes a social isolate, perhaps because he does not know the sign language and is not at home among the highly vigorous deaf people. I know of many semi-mutes who do not speak to conductors, clerks or strangers, or who cannot understand fast lips. They have to talk on the papers for inquiry to be surely understood.

A large number who have been taught by the pure oralists have found themselves placed at a disadvantage. Many deaf persons learn the sign language and thus a real monopoly of both deaf people, and make a happy livelihood. They become valuable members of various powerful organizations for the deaf which are managed by themselves.

An Admirable and Forceful Cartoon.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE cartoon entitled "His Own Tambourine," in your paper is an admirable and forceful illustration of what the American people are doing, pulling the people down with themselfs. The dollar chassis will pay the nationality later on for their utter disregard of law and order, clean government or anything else. I was particularly impressed, however, with the earnest attention given me by the Advertising Club of St. Louis which I addressed recently. I believe the business men for the most part realize that there are dangers ahead.

WATER POWER CONTROL.

In another column of yesterday's Sunday Post-Dispatch is a comprehensive report touching the pending fight in Congress for the control of water power, and over Senator Walsh's proposal to investigate the financing of public utilities.

Three Government projects are involved. These include a plan to build Boulder Canyon Dam in the Colorado River; the operation of Muscle Shoals, and the St. Lawrence River Ship Canal. The water power interests oppose the building of Boulder Dam by the Government, the development of St. Lawrence River, and Government operation of Muscle Shoals. The public utility interests oppose Senator Walsh's resolution for a Senate investigation. They say they are willing to have an investigation by the Federal Trade Commission, but the reorganized commission is under suspicion.

The control of the great natural resources for water power development is a question of serious import to the American people. The question is whether the Government shall retain at least ownership and control of water power resources for the benefit of all the people, or whether they shall be turned over for exploitation to private corporations. The plan of operation which will be most economical and efficient can be determined only by sound business judgment in each particular case, but we believe the people generally approve of Government control. We believe this policy would best serve the public welfare. These projects, involving the interests of large sections of country without regard to state boundaries, come under Federal jurisdiction. Several plans of operation are suggested under Government ownership and control.

The bulk of water power projects, however, is within the boundaries of states. The greater percentage of public utility enterprises fall under the jurisdiction of the states and are regulated by state commissions. Nevertheless, there are large public utility consolidations and combinations which extend over several states.

Senator Walsh's resolution is directed wholly to the financing of the great utility corporations, in which are superholding companies controlling enormous consolidations. The Trade Commission's inquiry has disclosed that superholding companies controlling large combinations in which the earnings are regulated by state commissions lead to excessive profits on small investments. The system of pyramiding has been carried to a high point. Senator Walsh proposes to throw the light of publicity on this pyramiding and all the financial operations of public utility companies. That much is in the public interest. Federal publicity will have a wholesome effect, as it is practically impossible for any State to conduct a general investigation. The Senate alone can do that.

Otherwise what is going to happen to all of us? Where will the Wall street stocks go? What, oh what, will happen to our Mellon-protected interests? Our stone wall tariff? Our marines in Nicaragua and our oil wells in Mexico? How will the farmers be reconciled to his fate without the heartening reassurance that Mr. Coolidge feels for him?

Oralism and the Sign Language.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE League of Women Voters declared recently that every large public day school for the deaf has discarded the manual and the combined methods in favor of the oral method for the mentally normal child. As a matter of fact many of these schools continue to employ the manual and the combined methods, which they contend is due to the desire to learn from what source the league obtained such sweeping information.

The oral method means that the sign language is forbidden while the pupil is being taught pure oralism. I strongly favor the oral method only for possible cases. I mean for those so-called semi-mutes and also those who show a real aptitude for the oral method. I have encouraged such persons. If a deaf-born person wants to learn lip reading it is for his own sake. For the certain number of deaf-born who totally or partially hear, the combined method and also the manual are quite necessary and correct. An attempt to experiment on a child born deaf and dumb with the oral method alone is very unkind and unscientific and a mischievous waste of time.

The deaf-born child after three or four years under rigid instruction of a pure oralist may be found a hopeless case and to have lost his four growing years in education. He becomes a social isolate, perhaps because he does not know the sign language and is not at home among the highly vigorous deaf people. I know of many semi-mutes who do not speak to conductors, clerks or strangers, or who cannot understand fast lips. They have to talk on the papers for inquiry to be surely understood.

A summary of the petition reads very much like any one of a thousand speeches made in the campaign. It charges that the State is dominated by the Jockey Club, that the latter sends lobbyists to every Legislature to kill any legislation harmful to its interests, that large sums of money are spent to damage and reform simply will not mix. In order to stir up the animals, as Mr. Mencken puts it, one must offer a good show, there must be the primitive sensation of the chase, and advertising good plays is one of no show and no chase at all.

Now we are quite sure that we would like to see this new type of reform supplant the old. The spectacle of Fundamentalists ceasing to rant and rave against modern science and beginning to rely upon an old-fashioned reading of Genesis, would be just too drab. The sight of prohibitionists ceasing to damn the Demon, and beginning to laud the virtues of ice cream soda, would be insufferably boresome. The world is sufficiently topsy-turvy now. We want our reform straight.

THE MOTOR AND THE COUNTRYSIDE.

Next Friday, Dec. 2, will take its place on the motor calendar as the date on which the new Ford will be displayed in the United States, Canada and England. Capacity production is announced by the company, to begin shortly after the new year. If the car is a success and if Mr. Ford's forecast of "increasing material prosperity" for 1928 prove correct, next year will see more automobiles than ever before on our streets and highways.

Nor is the problem confined within utilitarian and economic limits. There is an esthetic question—the question of beauty. Other countries—England in particular—have been less laggard than we on this score. The English national attitude towards the motor industry is different from ours. Notwithstanding a British manufacturer who has adopted, in a relatively small way, the methods of our "wizard," quantity production is not looked upon there as an unmixed blessing. The pride of old craftsmanship asserts itself in the British claim that their cars are "hand made." And there is the "countryside," famous in song and story and in green historic loveliness.

A tradition and a glory, that countryside is threatened, in a way, by the invading motor. The newspapers deplore its passing, we are told, but the English, with their extraordinary blend of sentiment and common sense, are determined to salvage as much as possible of the country's ancient charm. They are making their new arterial highways beautiful by planting trees on either side.

In Missouri's ambitious road program there ought to be provision for trees. Along with spacious highways let us have beautiful highways. Such beauty will pay us in gold and also in a coin "finer than much fine gold."

THE COUNTY BOND ISSUE.

St. Louis County will vote tomorrow upon the proposed $12,750,000 bond issue for public improvements. It may illuminate the situation to consider what will happen if the bond issue fails:

1. The county road system, in which it is planned to put $10,000,000, will proceed upon the hand-to-mouth policy in vogue now. That is not a pleasant prospect to face, nor is it the case by which the county can avail itself of its great opportunity to develop as a suburban residence section.

2. There will be no public hospital in the county, since without the $1,000,000 which the bond issue would give it for this purpose the county has no means of providing such an institution. This is a serious institutional lack in the county. It throws the public charges of the community upon the hospitals of St. Louis, and there is usually no room for them here.

3. There will be no parks and playgrounds in the county, though with the $1,000,000 provided for them in the bond issue it would be possible to buy land at this time for a small part of what it will cost when the need of these recreational areas becomes more acute than it is in the county's youth.

4. There will be no new jail in the county, notwithstanding the present structure is a firetrap and a breeder of crime in which there is no separation of prisoners and the young and the old are indiscriminately thrown together.

5. There will be no addition to the court house, though the business of the county has far outgrown the present quarters and neither its courts nor its records are properly housed. The bond issue provides $750,000 for a new jail and additions to the court house.

It is difficult to believe that the county will vote such necessities down.

NO MAIN STREET.

Perhaps there is in a revelation made at a recent meeting of the Missouri Historical Society an explanation why St. Louis, though far exceeded in population by some other American cities, clings tenaciously to her spiritual traditions and despite everything will not give up something like her symphony orchestra.

The old St. Louis, that is the original French city, so McCune Gill informed the society, never had a Main street. There were the Rue Royale and the Rue de l'Eglise, but in the lexicon of Laclede there was no such word as "main."

So escaped that, together with most things that enter an American city by way of Main street. No doubt that is why the book written by Sinclair Lewis made so little stir here. We had never experienced the cultural blight which it satirized, never known what it was not to know what good music is, or what good pictures are, or what the arts have to do with those refinements of feeling and taste beloved by the French.

It was a French community, and in some respects, chiefly cultural, it is a French community still.

KENTUCKY JOCKEY CLUB'S SUIT.

We read with disappointment of the suit just instituted by the Attorney-General of Kentucky to dissolve the Kentucky Jockey Club, forfeit its franchise, hang mourning on Churchill Downs and send the Derby to Chicago. Our disappointment is not so much with the aims of the suit, though they are dolorous enough, but with its poverty of thought and the lack of resourcefulness of those who are furthering the cause.

Of Making Many Books JOHN G. NEIHARDT

O'Neill's New Play

Lazarus Laughed. By Eugene O'Neill. (Boni &amp; Liveright.)

His idea that Eugene O'Neill expresses in his latest play, "Lazarus Laughed," is the very an-tmost one that he has preached in various other plays.

That idea is concerned with the salvation of the individual through self-denying realization of his oneness with all humanity; a passionate, self-anointing sense of the unity of man with the cos-mos whole.

The idea was old when Jesus of Nazareth preached it, receiving the same earthly compensation that other great teachers before him had received. Yet here we have the spectacle of a dramatist, preaching

the same doctrine over and over in one of the most cynical and materalistic periods of history—and gaining fame and wealth as a result.

EUGENE O'NEILL.

Are we to suppose that New York theater audiences and New York critics have been won over to the doctrine of the Nazarene as He himself taught it or can it be that they do not know what O'Neill is saying over and over?

Surely this is one of the very amusing spectacles of our moment—and the joke is hardly on Eugene O'Neill, whose economic doctrine of extreme radicalism and whose religious doctrine is pure Christian apocalypticism, and whose worldly opinions are affluence and loud applause.

Perhaps his teaching is sufficiently novel to be entertaining and he does put on an excellent show.

The present play presents a series of imaginary incidents in the life of Lazarus after he had been raised from the dead. The curtain immediately after the miracle has occurred, and the people are still agog with the wonder of it, though there are those among them who explain the marvel away with the usual simplicity of the rationalists. Many are eager to know what Lazarus' death was like and what had been done with it.

Yesterday Lazarus has nothing to tell but that which may be heard almost any church on almost any Sunday. There is no death, there is no sorrow; there is only life, which is God; all else is the illusory illusion of the self-obsessed.

It has been observed that during the hours of his "death" Lazarus launched a deep, joyous laugh as one who dreams of some pro-

The scene of the play moves on toward Rome, and everywhere Lazarus goes his laughter overcomes all who oppose him, and they too surrender to the laughter of love. Everywhere the substance of Lazarus' teaching is the same—Cowardice is our pitiable pre-tense; "courage" Lazarus "our immortal eschew the home of terror behind which cringed our Fear of the Dark!" Flung off is the instant insult to life's nobility which gibbons: "I, this Jew, this Roman, this noble or this slave, must survive in my pettiness forever!" Away with such cowardice of spirit! We will to die! We will to change!

Laughing we lived with our gift; now with laughter give we back that gift to become again the Essence of the Giver! Dying we laugh with the Infinite. We are the Giver and the Gift!" * This Man will! as his end and his new beginning. He must conceive and depict his own passing as a mood of eternal laughter and cry with pride, "Take back your God, and accept in turn a gift from me, my grateful blessing for your gift—and see, O God, now I am laughing with You! I am Your Laugh—and You are mine!"

Lazarus journeys to Rome at the command of the degenerate Emperor, Tiberius, who, fearing the doctrine of the man, manages to have him burned at the stake before the howling populace. With his last breath Lazarus answers the oft-repeated question of his torturer, "What is beyond?" "Life," says the martyr, "Eternity! Stars and dust! God's Eternal Laughter!"

There are high points of beauty and nobility in the play, and the central idea, however fantastically elaborated here, marks the highest reach of mankind's religious yearning. Nevertheless many readers are likely to feel that the whole thing is rather overwrought and that an unpleasant sense of formlessness of hysterical talkiness remains when the book is closed.

THE LETTERS OF MADAME DE SEVIGNE. With an Introduction by A. Edward Newton. (J. P. Horn & Co., Philadelphia.) Seven volumes.

THIS beautiful seven-volume edition of the letters of Madame de Sevigne is said to be the most nearly complete thus far published either in French or English.

All omissions have been restored and nearly all the "starred" names have been supplied. Former editions of the famous letters have covered no more than 27 years of the writer's life, whereas the present collection begins with the year 1647 and ends with the year 1666.

Over 300 letters, some of which have never before been printed and all of which are now presented in English for the first time, are included here.

The interest and importance that attaches to the letters of this famous seventeenth century Frenchwoman are obvious when one considers only a few of the famous men of the time with whom she was acquainted; for example, Corneille, Racine, Moliere, La Fontaine, La Rochefoucauld and Bossuet.

It would be pleasant to record the birth of a new "Cyrano" or "Lightnin'" or even an "Abe's Irish Rose," on this first night—or afternoon, if you will—in St. Louis in a long, long time. Millard Vincent, as a heavy villain of conventional type, fares rather better than the others—Alice Baker, Hal Price, Phil Macy, Frank Jaquet and Helena Shipman—who are hardly up to their mark.

Otherwise, Director Woodward

has striven mightily during the past week and the players have worked long and arduously to do in one week what New York producers ordinarily require four to six to accomplish. Mechanically the presentation is splendid. The two sets are exceptionally handsome, painted by William Ruge.

There was considerable applause with faint insolence.

"Because," he replied, "it would indicate you are a lady."
And to her surprise she responded: "Well, I'm not and never cared to be."

AND, it might be added, the actress who has several times been headlined in high scandals received the soundest applause of the evening.

ONE of those hilarious youths who had probably listened to the ad, "Take six banjo lessons by mail and become the life of the party," was cracking smart in the same cafe and doing much interrupting. Finally the master of ceremonies asked him to the floor and said, "Come on, father!" suggested he take his place. And for the second time the youth did and convulsed a hard-boiled audience it had not been convulsed for some time. Such evenings are rare in New York. I'm going to begin going around more.

THE majority of the fine art galleries in New York are now around Fifty-seventh street on Fifth and Madison avenues. Most of the time these salons seem described, yet rents are high, their salesmen are handsomely paid and most of them must retain representatives abroad. All of which proves that when they do sell a picture—somebody will yell "Ouch!"

MY experience in art galleries has not been pleasant. Several weeks ago I saw a Prince Albert oil painting appraised at $100,000. The owner left with, "Do you want to purchase or just look?" I had come in to use the telephone, which certainly made an old silly of him.

THE master of ceremonies in a night club the other evening introduced an actress with extra-glamorous qualities. She was unusually indifferent and little bored. Thinking she had not heard, he repeated his flattery and asked if she would be gracious enough to make a teeny bow. "Why should I?" she inquired

"STOP THE SHOW" AT ORPHEUM

So Does Alexander Carr; Dancing

Chief Feature of Other Numbers.

Two acts on this week's Orpheum bill "stopped the show" at the opening performances. One of them is Nick Lucas with his two guitars and his slender tenor that in its penetrating quality sounds rather as if it came from a human throat. His program is made up largely of songs he made popular in phonograph records. The other is Alexander Carr of Potash and Perlmutter fame, who presents a series of character impersonations through the medium of rhymed recitations. He finally had to sing a song in memory of his musical comedy days.

Dancing is the feature of all the other numbers on the program.

CHARLES B. MANVILLE, ASBESTOS KING, DIES

Founder of Johns-Manville Corporation succumbs to apoplexy at 93.

By the Associated Press.
PLEASANTVILLE, N. Y., Nov. 28.—Charles B. Manville, founder of the Johns-Manville Corporation and allied corporations, died at his home here Saturday night, succumbing to a stroke of apoplexy suffered a week ago. He was 93 years old.

Mr. Manville left his native Watertown, N. Y., as a young man and went West. He became interested in mining and his prospecting journeys carried him to California, the Black Hills of South Dakota and to Mexico. He later gave up mining and engaged in the manufacture of clothing in Milwaukee.

It was then that he became interested in the production of effective insulating material, particularly designed to cover hot-carrying pipes. He first evolved a product of wool shoddy and clay and in 1888 he established the business which has grown into world-wide prominence.

Later Manville began using a mixture of 15 per cent asbestos and 85 per cent magnesia, now almost universally used for heat insulation purposes. In 1900, he moved his headquarters to New York and purchased the H. W. Johns Co., a concern engaged in the same business. In recent years the Johns-Manville Corporation has undertaken the manufacture of a wide variety of products and the company now lists assets in excess of $22,000,000.

Manville, having amassed millions from asbestos and its by-products, retired from active business in 1902, and Thomas Franklin Manville, the elder of his two sons, took his place remaining at the head of the concern until he died two years ago, leaving a fortune of $20,000,000. He was succeeded by his brother, H. Edward Manville. Last May J. P. Morgan & Co. purchased large holdings of common and preferred stock in the company and Mr. Manville retired as president and became chairman of the board.

BOY DIES, 2 ILL AS RESULT OF DRINKING TOMATO WINE

Poisoning Followed Ashgrove (Mo.) Drinking Party; Coronor Plans Investigation.

ASHGROVE, Mo., Nov. 28.—Nebbie Hughes, 13-year-old junior in Ashgrove High School, is dead, and Cecil Hagar and the 27-year-old son of Fred Robnett, both resides near Ashgrove, are seriously ill as a result of poisoning which followed the drinking of tomato wine, nearly two weeks ago, according to physicians.

Funeral services for Hughes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hughes, were Saturday afternoon.

Hughes, Hagar and Robnett were members of a party of 18 who obtained a quantity of tomato wine for a party, it is said. The three were the only ones stricken. Poisoning of the stomach and kidneys resulted from the drinking of the wine, according to Dr. Charles McElroy, coroner.

The three refused to tell where the wine was obtained or the names of other members of the group. An investigation probably will be ordered by Coroner Jewel E. Winkler.

Chain Store Owner Wins Suit Over Stock in His Firm.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Sebastian S. Krèске, chain store magnate, today was awarded $640,293 in his $85,000 suit against W. E. Hutton & Co., stock brokers. The amount represented the value of 5,100 shares in the Krèске company which Krèске said he loaned Hutton & Co.

The company maintained, however, that it had only acted as Krèске's agent in loaning the stock to the now defunct firm of J. M. Byrne & Co., in an effort to save it from bankruptcy.

PARKING OF AUTOS ON LEVEE SUGGESTED

Director Brooks Would Use River Bank to Relieve Downtown Congestion.

An estimate that there is room for parking 3500 automobiles off the levee between the Free Bridge and Franklin avenue, a larger capacity than all downtown streets between Fourth and Twelfth streets, Market street and Franklin avenue, and a suggestion that such use be made of the river bank to alleviate downtown congestion, were made by Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks today.

His statement was in comment upon an editorial in the Post-Dispatch last Wednesday, in which it was pointed out that, if, as the Director desires, all daytime parking on Washington avenue, Locust and Olive streets be prohibited, there must be some provision for the automobiles thus banished. The editorial also pointed out that the prohibition of parking was only a temporary relief measure and that the downtown traffic mess would not be effectively solved short of rapid transit such as subways.

Extent of Area Available.

Director Brooks said today that the levee parking area had twice the capacity of two similar areas used by the public in Grant Park in Chicago.

The shortest distance between the Grant Park parking spots and Michigan boulevard is one-half mile," Director Brooks said. "Late coming from half a mile to Michigan boulevard and another one-fourth mile to reach the heart of the business district. It is only one-fourth mile from the levee to Fourth street, and four more blocks takes one to Eighth street, the heart of the St. Louis business district. Moreover, the levee space runs one mile parallel to the business district and thus serves a wide area. It is only five minutes to Broadway at any point between Chouteau avenue and Franklin avenue. The area would hold all the cars that now park on the fringes of the downtown restricted parking area."

Temporary Sites Possible.

Furthermore, as the city gains possession of the Plaza area temporary use of that ground for parking could be made. The city now possesses 32 parcels of land, having a combined area of 118,000 square feet. If cleared, that area would care for 420 automobiles or as many as could park along Chestnut, Pine and Olive streets between Twelfth and Fifteenth streets. I do not advocate that the city go into the garage business, but these parcels could be leased out to individuals, as the site of the new courthouse was leased for several years. These measures would give temporary relief until private capital invests in further downtown parking garages.

The time is not far distant when new office buildings will provide parking area for automobiles of occupants. The new municipal auditorium plans call for a space for the parking of automobiles in its basement."

GENEVA, Nov. 28.—Increased tension between Poland and Lithuania is indicated with the receipt by the League of Nations today of two new communications from the Kovno Government containing extracts from Polish newspapers which Lithuania insists prove that Poland seeks to secure the overthrow of the existing regime at Kovno. Premier Waldemars of Lithuania first sent Sir Eric Drummond, British Secretary, a memorandum containing various declarations in the Warsaw press and followed this up today by a telegram containing further extracts.

The Lithuanian Premier asked that these communications be attached to and considered in connection with Kovno's original appeal to the League against the arrest of clergy and the closing of Lithuanian schools in the Vilna district, whose occupation by Poland Lithuania refused to recognize.

BERLIN, Nov. 28.—Premier Waldemars of Lithuania in a signed telegram to Reuter's correspondent here says there is overwhelming evidence that certain persons who fled from Lithuania after the attempted revolution at Tanrogen last September were being used by the Polish Government as organizers of revolutionary movement against the Lithuanian Government.

As to the question whether the present Government is prepared to resume normal relations with Poland by renouncing Vilna, continues the message, "I must emphasize that no Lithuanian party is ready to renounce Vilna, and that all my party, I am ready to resume normal relations when a satisfactory agreement has been reached with Poland regarding Vilna and when Poland manifests readiness to respect Lithuania's independence."

BUTLER TO OPEN WET CAMPAIGN IN MISSOURI DEC. 14

President of Columbia University to Speak for Association Against Prohibition.

The campaign of the Missouri Association Against Prohibition for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the dry enforcement statutes will be opened in St. Louis Wednesday evening Dec. 14 with an address at the Odeon by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, New York, and one of the widely known and active opponents of prohibition.

Following that meeting James W. Byrnes, vice-president of the association, announced that the national campaign of the State will be undertaken through a State organization which has been perfected during the last few months. Byrnes said the association had listed the names of 50,000 persons, including 8000 women, and reaching into every voting precinct of the State outside of St. Louis who can be counted upon to be active against prohibition.

Wants Plank On Liquor.
Through this organization Byrnes said it was believed the opponents of the "dry" laws would hold the balance of power in the 1928 election in Missouri, and would be in a position to defeat radical dry candidates. It is the present intention to demand of both political parties that in their platforms there be no straddling of the liquor question, and that each platform shall contain a definite position on the subject.

President Butler will stress the opinion that prohibition is a political question, his subject being: "The Problem of the Eighteenth Amendment, Moral, Social, Political."

In the preliminary work no effort has been made to organize in St. Louis, the directors of the association's activities proceeding on the theory that public sentiment in St. Louis is with them.

For Law Enforcement.
Byrnes said that the campaign would be conducted with dignity and along educational lines.

"It is our intention to pitch our fight against prohibition on its plain," said "We will insist that the Eighteenth amendment should be strictly enforced so long as it is a part of the Constitution, but we will fight as vigorously as we can for candidates for Congress and the Senate who will vote for its resubmission to the people for repeal."

"We will show the sinister operations of the bootleggers and expect to show by statistics that prohibition has been a failure."

"There will be no appeal for beer. This is not a fight for the stomach. It is one for individual liberty under the Constitution."

Robbed by Stranger He Befriends.
Ceil C. Hardy of Brooks, Ga., appeared last midnight at Police Headquarters in an ill-fitting pair of overalls and battered hat to tell how a man he had befriended had robbed him while he slept, of his clothes, $52, his watch and a ring.

Upshaw speaks today in Bonnville, tomorrow in Jefferson City, Wednesday in Kirksville, Thursday in Hannibal and Friday in Webster Groves.

Upshaw said he met the man yesterday on his way into St. Louis and when the stranger told a story of a street reported to police yesterday that a stench bomb had been thrown in his shop as he was working Saturday night. Nickalous attributed the attack to his refusal to join a union. He said a man representing himself as a walking delegate visited him last week and threatened him when he refused to join. Nickalous employs no help in his store.

"But what can this
'Mercantile Service'
Do for Me?"

That's a fair question, and we are going to ask everyone to listen
while we answer it

We could tell you all the things "Mercantile Service" might do for you, Mr. A., but when we had finished you would have only our side of the story, which, unsupported by actual things that had happened, might not carry conviction. So, we prefer to answer by telling you what we have done for others. We can, of course, do the same things for you.

Some one offered an old patron of ours an alleged safe investment for $5,000, saying the returns from this investment would be very large. The patron asked us how much we would lend him on this security (the acid test). We saved him $5,000.

Mr. S. is a safe deposit box renter, and one day while examining the contents of his box he tore in half an envelope containing a $1,000 bond and threw both in the waste basket. But our system will not allow box renters to lose. The pieces were returned to him along with a copy of the booklet, "How to Replace Valuable Papers."

If you own income-producing real estate, we suggest that you do as Mr. C. has done. All of his property is in our care as agent; and we select tenants, collect rents, supervise repairs free of charge and handle all incidental details. We offer every service of a real estate agency, backed by the added responsibility of a trust company.

A certain well-known St. Louis business man maintains a savings account and makes regular deposits. He says he cannot afford to risk losing the habit of saving money.

Dr. J. owns a large number of securities, and the time spent in giving them proper attention would seriously interfere with his practice. So he has placed them in our charge (in what we call a customers' securities account) and we handle all details, interest collection, and re-investment. All he must do is approve our recommendations.

Anyone that deserves bank credit can get it at the Mercantile Trust Company.

Mr. H. has appointed us executor in his will, which means that we will take over the important business of protecting the family funds when he must quit. Will your family have this protection, Mr. A.?

You heard about the — Company being refinanced?... We arranged the plan and details.

Mr. B. has a wife and two children and carries $25,000 life insurance. He realizes that the less he leaves for them, the more it will need protecting... so he has made his insurance payable to his wife and children over a period of years, under the terms of a life insurance trust. When he can afford more insurance he will enlarge the trust.

"Mercantile Service" can save time for you. Many people are saving many minutes here, because they are able to transact all of their financial business under one roof.

You may be an unusual person, Mr. A., and never be tempted to buy an unsafe security, never need advice in matters of finance and real estate, never worry about who will protect the family funds when you must quit, and never need bank credit. All this is hardly possible, but if it should be, we still can serve you. You will not wish to carry all of your money in your pocket at all times, nor will you care to take a day off each month and pay all your bills with cash. You must have a safe depository, such as the MERCANTILE TRUST COMPANY, for your funds. Therefore, Mr. A., we invite you to use "Mercantile Service."

Houses were swept away and large buildings collapsed in an area 50 miles wide from Orleansville to Perregau and northward to the Mediterranean.

The brief message of an engineer over a hurriedly repaired telephone line saved hundreds of lives when a dam a third of a mile long broke at Perregau. The region is isolated and relief work is difficult.

The dam is breaking. Ring the basin. Warn the population," the engineer shouted over the telephone to the authorities at Perregau.

The warning that millions of tons of water were threatening the city spread rapidly. Ten thousand inhabitants fled to the hills.

NOTRE DAME AND SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA SIGN 2-YEAR AGREEMENT

TEAMS TO PLAY AT LOS ANGELES IN NEXT BATTLE

1929 Contest Likely to Be Waged in New Stadium at South Bend — 117,000 Saw Game Saturday.

Navy Will Play Notre Dame at Chicago in 1928

CHICAGO, Nov. 28. By the Associated Press. The Navy, which played the Army at Soldier Field here last year, will be back in 1928, but with Notre Dame as the opposition. The game will be played, Oct. 13, Coach Rockne of Notre Dame announced.

The South Bend school will play both service elevens next year, Army already having been scheduled for a game in New York. The schedule has taken on an inter-sectional complexion through the arrangements for games also with Loyola of New Orleans, Georgia Tech and the University of Southern California.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 28. — Another thrilling inter-sectional football game between the University of Southern California and Notre Dame was promised today to the 117,000 Middle Western fans who watched Notre Dame beat the Trojans of the West, 7 to 6 Saturday at Soldier Field. The teams have signed another two-year home-and-home agreement, the 1928 game to be played at Los Angeles and the 1929 tussle somewhere in this region unless the South Bend Indians or Notre Dame proposed new stadium is complete by that time.

Spectacular play and plain dogged football were shown the record-breaking crowd Saturday. Both teams scored in the first 10 minutes on forward passes, but the aerial game thereafter was largely discarded for end runs and line smashes which gained but a few yards if any against determined opposition.

Morley Drury, the star Trojan quarterback, could not beat the brilliant array of Notre Dame ball carriers single-handed. He got loose once for the run which gave Southern California its first scoring opportunity, but thereafter he either slipped or was pulled down before he had gone very far. Saunders grabbed the first touchdown pass successfully, but missed the next two, one being intercepted by Riley and the other ground.

The same Riley, Notre Dame's little quarterback, scored a touchdown and Dahman proceeded to kick the winning point. Flanagan's fumble cut short Notre Dame's next touchdown march, and the pistol stopped the other.

Many an "if" figured in the great inter-sectional struggle. If Drury had worn his spikes, he might have kept his feet on the iron occasions when only one tackler stood between him and the goal. If Riley hadn't dropped the intercepted forward pass behind his own goal, it might have gone for a safety which would have given the Trojans a one-point victory instead of a one-point defeat. If Southern California had brought along one more serviceable ball carrier to help Drury carry the burden, he might not have faded in the last half. If Flanagan had dropped the ball after a 20-yard dash, then center to within scoring distance, Notre Dame might have had a convincing margin of victory. If Chilly Walsh hadn't blocked Drury's kick for the point after touchdown, the score might have been a tie.

Again the weather man laid his benediction on Soldier Field, though the canvas cover and the muggy weather were the only two elements necessary. Twice play was halted to wipe off the perspiration and perhaps it was this condition which kept the field generals of each squad wary of too many passes.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA AND NOTRE DAME TO SPLIT $300,000 GATE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—The athletic boards of Notre Dame and University of Southern California will split a total of approximately $300,000 as the net profits of Saturday's record-breaking football game at Soldiers' Field. The receipts were over $250,000.

The rental of Soldiers' Field was $40,000 and other expenses estimated at $10,000, leaving $150,000 each for the university coffers.

Walther League Results.

The Concordia quintet of Kirkwood continued its winning streak yesterday by defeating Christ Church of Webster Groves, 23 to 28, in a Walther League basketball game. A Federer score 13 points for the winners, while Fedder, for Christ Church, was high point man with 10. Trinity, 26 to 20, and Christ Church of St. Louis won from St. Peters, 27 to 11, in other league games.

Notre Dame Ace Gaining Through U. S. C. Line

STECHER READY TO MEET LEWIS FOR MAT TITLE

Champion, in St. Louis, Will Listen to Terms of Eastern Promoters Before Setting Date and Place.

Joe Stecher, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, today accepted through his brother and manager, Anton Stecher, the challenge of Ed "Strangler" Lewis to a title match. The place and date will be agreed upon later. Tony Stecher said after a conference with promoter Tom Pucks here at noon.

"I have given my promise to Promoter Jack Curley of New York and Fabiani of Philadelphia that I would listen to their terms for a match with Lewis," said Anton Stecher. "I cannot accept the terms offered by the St. Louis promoters until I have at least given Curley and Fabiani a chance to bid. We are departing tonight for New York and Tom Pucks will join us there. Within the next three or four days we should have reached a decision as to the place and the date of the match." Stecher has not met Lewis since the Strangler won the title from Joe, seven years ago.

Billy Sandow, manager of the challenger, Ed Lewis, has posted $5,000 with Dan Jones, president New Coliseum Athletic Club, guaranteeing him $10,000 if he wins the title. The Strangler has not met Lewis since the Strangler won the title from Joe, seven years ago.

Billy Sandow, manager of the challenger, Ed Lewis, has posted $5,000 with Dan Jones, president New Coliseum Athletic Club, guaranteeing him $10,000 if he wins the title. The Strangler has not met Lewis since the Strangler won the title from Joe, seven years ago.

The early Olympic jumping was accomplished from a mark or, as in modern times, from a wooden take-off. But the jump did not count unless the jumper kept his feet after the leap!

That must have cramped their performances materially. To us it appears doubtful if the best of the ancients could have bridged that tremendous gap cleared by Hubbard.

Nothing can prevent this match now unless Sandow and Lewis run out on us," said Joe Stecher. "They forfeited $5,000 in California by refusing to go through with a match when we surprised them by accepting their challenge and I rather suspect that they may do the same thing again."

Sandow has indicated that he wants the match held in St. Louis or Chicago. The Stechers will not consent to wrestle in Chicago, though the canvas cover and the muggy weather were the only two elements necessary. Twice play was halted to wipe off the perspiration and perhaps it was this condition which kept the field generals of each squad wary of too many passes.

LARGE ENTRY LIST EXPECTED FOR CAGE TOURNEY AT FULTON

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FULTON, Mo., Nov. 27.—Teams from a wider area than ever before are expected to enter for the fourth annual basketball tournament for high school girls' team, which will be held here Feb. 2, 3 and 4, under the auspices of William Woods College, which has sponsored this event for the past three years. The participating tournament will be for the Kilwanian trophy, which was won by the Elkins High School last year.

Montgomery City and Crystal City also have won the trophy once and either of the three teams can get permanent possession of it this year by winning the tournament, the requirement being that it be won twice, but not necessarily in succession.

A number of new high schools, several of them with fine records in their sections, have indicated that they will also be in the contest, which is the outstanding athletic event for the winter season in Fulton and is always attended by record crowds. The games will be played in the McBride gymnasium of William Woods College.

ROOSEVELT AND ST. LOUIS U. HIGH PLAY FOR CITY TITLE SATURDAY

BOTH ELEVENS ARE UNDEFEATED FOR CAMPAIGN

Rough Riders, With Big Weight Advantage, Are Likely to Prove Favorites for Contest.

By Gerald Holland.

The third important local game in three weeks is scheduled Saturday in the stadium when Lee Carlson's Rough Riders, public high school and Chicago-St. Louis intercity champions, meet the St. Louis U. high eleven. Preparatory league winner, to determine the city title.

The game was scheduled originally for Nov. 12, but by mutual agreement of Coaches Carlson and McCarty, was postponed so as not to interfere with the teams' drives for league championships. The Missouri State High School Association has sanctioned the game, although its constitution requires that regular schedules must be completed by Nov. 30.

Both teams are undefeated. Roosevelt has won eight games, including Saturday's defeat of Schurz, and has tied one. St. Louis' record is identical, and it is tied for the game. The Rough Riders have scored 202 points to opponents' 12 while the Junior Billikens have counted 68 to 15 for the opposition.

Roosevelt, of course, will be the favorite to win. The Rough Riders will have a substantial advantage in weight, averaging about 171 pounds as compared to St. Louis' 153.

Light Work is Planned.
Coach Carlson will give the Roosevelt squad a rest this afternoon and will continue the light workouts of last week starting tomorrow. The Junior Billikens may run through a light scrimmage, inasmuch as the squad has not played a game since Nov. 19.

Like Vandalia, Roosevelt captain carried the only serious injury out of the Schurz game Saturday, having further aggravated an injured shoulder. He may be able to play Saturday, however.

The admission for Saturday's game will be the same as for the intercity contest, $1 at the gate or 50 cents for tickets in advance. The proceeds will be divided equally between the two schools. The revenue from the Schurz-Roosevelt game was shared, after the visitors' guarantee had been deducted, between the five public high schools.

REFRESHING MALTED MILK

Excellent for Children and Invalids and as a Pickup for Grownups.

Just measure three or four teaspoons of the chocolate malted milk powder in a glass or cup, mix to a paste with a little hot water, place in a shaker and pour out of milk bottle—cool, foam and refreshing—in a tall glass with perhaps a dainty cracker for an accompaniment.

For the automobile ride or excursion, this food drink may be carried in a thermos bottle. It's invaluable, too, for boy and girl scouts on the trail. The addition of an egg produces an even more nourishing drink, or the powder may be used for cake frosting, for fudge, ice cream, puddings and chocolate sauce.

Make Whipped Cream Firm.
Gelatine will keep whipped cream firm, and a small quantity is usually added for this purpose, although if the cream is properly whipped and chilled this should not be necessary.

Recipes From All Nations
Found in New Cook Book

Housewives of All Nationalities Contribute Recipes to a Remarkable Little Book Published by St. Louisans.

Housewives enjoy looking through cook books of other nations for new or different ideas.
This is an excellent plan, as all nations may learn of one another in cooking as in other things.

Realizing this desire, the International Institute, sponsored by St.
Louis women interested in helping make foreign women who come to St. Louis an integral part of our great and growing city, has assembled and published a collection of foreign recipes in book form under the title "Menus and Recipes From Abroad."

In a foreword by Elizabeth Hummel of the Institute, mention is made that the recipes were collected together at the request of many friends of the institute who have enjoyed, from time to time, the foreign dishes served at the studies.

"We hope," concludes the author, "our little book will give you many delicious unified diets and finally, we hope in its way, it will bring you closer to your neighbors from abroad."

The book may be obtained at International Institute, 3311 Washington Boulevard.

The funds obtained through the sale of the book go to the institute treasury.

The following pot pourri recipes are given as what the new cook book calls

Stuffed Peppers Crostini.

Take five large peppers, the fourth pound ground pork, one-half spoon paprika, two tablespoons lard, one cup rice, one egg, one spoon salt, one large can tomatoes and two tablespoons flour.

Clean peppers, dice them horizontally for three times then rinse out in cold water, rice for twenty minutes, then with pork, onion and egg, add stuff into peppers about two fourth's full. Hard lard in pan and brown, add one-half cold water, stir, add tomatoes peppers into sauce, open and cook one hour.

Spanish Baked Ham.

Two thick slices of raw ham boil in cold water and place slice in baking dish cover with layer of chopped and green peppers of chili pepper layer of canned tomatoes, lay fine bread crumbs, layer of cheese. Add second slice of ham and repeat. Pour over all milk and a little mustard dissolved in milk, bake until very done and after removing meat to dishes with rich gravy, pour the drippings in the pan. Next rooms sauted in butter and boiled eggs make a nice border to this excellent supper dish.

Cottage Cheese Tzatziki.

Czech-Slovak.

Take two cups flour, pinch salt, three tablespoons sugar, one egg, one-third pound of cream cottage cheese.

Make a noodle dough out of cups of flour and two eggs out thin and cut in four squares.

Cream the cottage cheese with butter, egg and sugar, square with cheese filling, fold triangles and pinch the tightly together; boil thirty minutes. Serve with dried crumbs sprinkled over them.

Spinach Pie.

Albanian.

Take four cups flour, one egg, melted; two pounds add one pound cottage cheese half dozen eggs, salt to taste hot water.

Make a soft dough of the salt and hot water. Take pieces of the dough (about the size of a walnut) and roll very thin. Brush dough with butter and pile in front of teen layers. Line a large shallow pan with crust. Cut spinach pieces and fry in butter. To this cottage cheese and egg yolks beaten. Place in pan. Cover with another crust and bake one hour. Leeks are sometimes substituted for spinach and meat the cottage cheese.

Stuffed Cabbage Leaves.

Hungarian.

Take two pounds of sauerkraut, one head cabbage, one and one half pounds lean pork, one half cup rice and salt and pepper to taste.

Parboil rice in a little water when there is no water left when the whole cabbage is in very hot water for 10 minutes take out of the water and separate the leaves immediately about of them, being careful that they do not break. Mix ground meat with rice, add teaspoonful of black pepper and mix well. Put half of sauerkraut in a pot; take the meat and rice, put it into the cabbage leaves, rolling the leaf over the meat and closing the end.
the filled leaves on top of the sauerkraut in pot, then pour the rest of the kraut on top and whole cook for an hour and a half hour.

FOOTBALL SPREADS QUITE THE THING

Entertaining for the Teams Will Be Popular This Week and Next.

Now that the football season is over many spreads are being arranged for the victorious teams for, as we know during the training season, spreads and eats were taboo by the members of the football elevens.

As St. Louis, during the past season, had a tremendous large number of football elevens, grade, preparatory, high school and college teams, there will be countless football dinners and suppers on the schedule for this week and next.

Football parties are easy to arrange, as they offer great opportunity for decorations as each team has its own colors which may be used in the table and room decorations.

For instance, if the colors of the team are red and white, these colors and the team's pennants may be draped and hung on the walls of the dining room and red and white chrysanthemums in tall vases used to accent the color scheme.

The table may be laid with a white damask cloth with bowls of red ripe apples and white grapes as centerpieces. Ruby glass stems and crystal glass service plates and candlesticks may be used.

Tiny football figures may be selected for place cards and football stickpins for souvenirs. Miniature football candy containers may be placed at each plate for the salted almonds or mints.

An additional festive note may be added by banking the buffet and mantel with mums and by tying huge bows of red and white tarleton on the backs of the chairs and suspending like decorations over the doors. Red balloons could be tied to the chairs, which when the festive beginning becomes released. Or, if preferred, the guests may release the balloons, carry them through the first dance, after which they may be released.

cently in Chicago in honor of a victorious team, the following significant menu was served the guests.

It was lettered on football-shaped cards that had the date and the team names done in gilt:

Quick down shorts.
Raw oysters on the shell.
Bleachers (celery).

A crummy lot (crackers).
Don't chew (conserve).
A foul (broiled chicken).

Hot trot (potato croquettes).

Grounders (potato croquettes).

A cold deal (ice cream).

Wet grounds (coffee).

The ice cream was in football molds, each ball was rolled in ground nut meats and cocoa so the effect was quite realistic.

Around the table after dessert they had a word-making game to see who could make the most words out of the letters in "chrysanthemum." The prize was a corsage of pompons for the girl and
"mum" for the boy.

A regular songfest of college songs followed and informal dances wound up the football party.

Color and horns and ties in yellow and blue were among the favors used for four of the dances and the last dance wound up in a mad whirl of serpentine and confetti.

FRANKFURTER DANTIES ARE SOMETHING DIFFERENT

Though Requiring Time to Prepare and Bake, They Repay the Trouble.

The average person rarely thinks of frankfurters offering any possibilities for combination with other articles of food. Housewives who try this recipe will be told in their praises of it.

Frankfurter Dainty.

Make a biscuit dough of two cups sifted flour, four teaspoons baking powder, two tablespoons shortening, one teaspoon salt and seven-eighths cup of milk or water.

Sift the dry ingredients twice.
Work in the shortening; add enough milk or water to make a soft dough. Toss dough on floured board, roll out and cut into inch. Cut in squares. Spread frankfurter with mustard and roll up with the biscuit dough, wetting the edges of the dough with cold water to hold them together. Bake 20 minutes and serve while hot.
These are delicious for card parties and Dutch suppers.

CANNED FRUIT PUDDINGS

These Simple Desserts Are Nourishing, Delicious and Easily Made.

An excellent way of using canned fruit throughout the winter is in the form of puddings. The simplest of these are in the group which we call betties. Brown betty made from apple is the most familiar, but blueberry, cherry, blackberry and other small fruit betties are nourishing, digestible and delicious.
Furthermore, there are two methods of making these betties. The old-fashioned is perhaps best for children, since pieces of bread and butter are used to line the baking dish, adding fruit and bread in alternate layers with bread on top.

A richer pudding is made by having the bread dry, ground into fine crumbs, these crumbs to be mixed with melted butter. The buttered crumbs are then used in the same way for alternate layers.
While this latter form of fruit pudding is far richer in energy than the former pudding, it is more a grown-up pudding. One reason for this is that the sauce is usually known as hard sauce, com-

GOOD BISCUIT DOUGH AND HOW TO MAKE IT

Oftentimes the Cook Is Judged by the Biscuits She Makes.

There are two distinct types of rolled biscuits—one small and you will find the fat and the larger, lighter and with comparatively little crust. When making biscuits of the first type, roll the dough thin and place them farther apart in the pan, forming a crust on all sides. The lighter and thicker biscuits are rolled at least  $\frac{1}{4}$  inch thick and are placed very close together.

The principal thing to remember in biscuit making is to have all the ingredients as possible, as soft work and handle the dough so much, since this handling of the dough develops the gluten-making the biscuits hard and soggy. This is why the fat is first worked in the flour, then the liquid added. In that way the dough does not require so much working. The fat may be worked in with the tips of the fingers or with the fingers or worked in with a fork. When the fat is thoroughly combined with the flour it should have the appearance of cornmeal.

The liquid may be milk or water or a combination of both. Of course, milk makes a more nutritious product.

A greater number of housewives use bread or hard wheat flour although pastry or soft wheat flour makes delicious biscuits. Bread flour, due to the gluten which it contains, absorbs more moisture.

Biscuit dough must be just as soft as possible, and it can be patted out with the palm of the hand or rolled with a rolling pin. The rolling motion should be very soft and gentle, because the hard pressure on the dough makes the biscuits soggy.

The baking is almost as important as the mixing. Biscuits require a hot oven 450 degrees Fahrenheit. They bake rapidly because of the large amount of surface exposed. However, if the oven is too hot they brown before the dough has risen as much as it should and your biscuits will not be so light.

Baking powder dough offers many possibilities for desserts, rolls and meat pies. Fresh shortcake and dough for meat pies require more fat. The regular biscuit recipe can be used for butterscotch, cheese or orange rolls.

Roll the dough into a rectangular sheet and spread with orange or any desired marmalade or an orange cream filling. Just cinnamon, sugar and butter is good spread on the dough, and rolled just the same as a jelly roll.

CHEESE DISHES FOR LUNCH GAIN IN POPULARITY

Cheese in Combination With Other Foods Makes an Entire Meal.

Why this dish is called cheese muff is left for others to determine. To make it, eight slices of bread (from which the crusts have been removed), two cups grated American cheese, three eggs, one and one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper and three cups scalded milk.

Put a layer of the crustless bread in a baking dish. Cover with a thick layer of cheese, a little salt and pepper, then with another layer of bread. Cover with cheese and season with pepper and salt. Beat eggs, add milk and pour over. Put a last layer of cheese over the top and bake in a hot oven thirty minutes.

Cheese Biscuits.

Take two cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, two tablespoons melted shortening, one-half cup grated cheese, seven-eighths cup milk or water.

Sift together all dry ingredients.

Add shortening to milk and water,

then cut into first mixture with knife or spatula. Toss onto slightly floured board, roll to one-inch

oven fifteen minutes.

CUT UP CABBAGE EVENLY

This Vegetable Is Cooked in a Few Minutes When Nicely Cut Up.

Cabbage cut evenly fine cooks quickly and evenly, and may be as attractive and even finer than cauliflower when fastidiously managed. One way to cut a cabbage fine is to stand it stem end down on a board, after removing the imperfect outer leaves and cutting off the stems squarely. Now slice through it, except for the last little edge, in even and thin slices. This little bit is saved to prevent it from falling apart when we turn it around to make cuts at right angles to the first. Finally, cut a slice off the bottom and the whole will fall into bits, except for the slit core which can easily be removed. It can be beautifully cooked now in ten minutes.

SERVE CRAB BISQUE

In Demand as a First Course at a Formal Dinner or Luncheon.

To make crab bisque put four cups milk on to boil and when boiling add two tablespoons of melted butter and flour which have been rubbed until smooth; boil five minutes and then add one and one-half teaspoons red pepper, one level teaspoon salt, pinch of mace and parsley. Remove bones from half pint crabmeat and put into a small saucepan over hot water. When thoroughly heated add to the thickened milk. Serve in cups and sprinkle with finely chopped parsley.

PIL

Thousands Today Are Suffering Terrible

Hundreds of thousands of men and women who have been suffering for years the terrible torture and agony are now able to get blessed relief through the use of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt's Piles, according to Dr. Leonhardt, whether they are caused by piles, straining or constipation. It is the piles that cause the lower bowel. This in turn causes the rectum to become stagnated and causes the walls of the bowel to be soft and flabby. It is absolutely impossible for you or anyone in fact to expect any permanent relief from the use of any other medicine. You have absolutely freed the circulation in the lower bowel and let it in rich healthy blood which is good for the raw, sore, sensitive membrane.

Federal Reserve Board's Report Shows Unseasonal Decreases in Almost Every Line.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Production of manufactures declined in October, contrary to the usual seasonal tendency, the Federal Reserve Board's monthly summary said yesterday. Activity of iron and steel mills and automobile plants was smaller in October and November than at any previous period this year.

Decreases in October of cotton consumption, production of building materials, crude petroleum and boats and ships were reported.

Favorable October weather in farm states increased yields of late fall crops.

The output of bituminous coal and the number of hogs and cattle slaughtered increased by less than the usual seasonal amount, the report said. "Production of flour, paper and anthracite coal showed increases in October. Building contracts awarded increased considerably owing to unusually large awards in New York and Chicago in the last week of the month.

Wholesale Trade Smaller.
Trade at wholesale and retail showed less than the usual seasonal increase in October. Compared with October a year ago, wholesale trade in all leading lines except meats and drugs was smaller.

Department store sales were approximately 3 per cent smaller than in October, 1926, while those of the mail order houses and chain stores were somewhat larger. Inventories of merchandise carried by wholesale firms were smaller in all reporting lines at the end of the month than in September. Compared with a year ago, stocks were smaller in all lines except drugs. Stocks of department stores increased in October in anticipation of the growth of sales that usually occurs in November and December, but at the end of the month they were no larger than a year ago.

"Freight car loadings declined in October and the first part of November and were smaller than in the corresponding period of last year for all classes of freight except grain and grain products.

Commodity Prices Up.
Wholesale commodity prices increased slightly. The advance in the average from September to October reflected increases in live stock, meats and dairy products. Price of corn, cotton, coal, metals, paper, materials and automobile tires, on the other hand, declined. During the first three weeks in November there were increases in the prices of grains, cattle, copper, hides and rubber, and decreases in hogs, cotton, silk, coal, petroleum and iron and steel.

Total loans and investments of member banks in leading cities increased by nearly $300,000,000 during the latter part of October and the first part of November, and on Nov. 16 were the highest ever reported. Investments increased by more than $200,000,000, reflecting in large part purchases of Treasury certificates issued on Nov. 15, and loans on securities increased by about $125,000,000. Loans chiefly for commercial and agricultural purposes declined during the period from the seasonal peak reached early in October.

CHAPTER 1.

R. WILLIAM SPEDDING of the firm of Spedding, Mortimer and Larach, Solicitors, bought the site in Lombard Street in the conventional way. The property came into the market on the death of an old lady who lived at Market Harbour, who had nothing to do with this story, and it was put to auction in the orthodox fashion.

Mr. William Spedding secured the site at £106,000, a sum sufficiently large to excite the interest of all the evening papers and a great number of the morning journals as well.

As a matter of exact detail, I may add that the plans were produced and approved by the city surveyor for the erection of a building of a peculiar type. The city surveyor was a little puzzled by the interior arrangement of the new edifice, but as it fulfilled the requirements of the regulations governing buildings in the City of London, as no fault could be found either with the external appearance—it's facade had been artfully designed that you might pass a dozen times a day without the thought occurring that this new building was anything out of the common ruck—and as the systems of ventilation and light were beyond reproach, he passed the plans with a shrug of his shoulders.

"I cannot understand, Mr. Spedding," said, laying his forefinger on the blue print, "how your client intends securing privacy. There is a lobby and one big hall. Who are the private offices, and what is the idea of this huge safe in the middle of the hall and where are the clerks to sit? I suppose he will have clerks? Why, man, he would have a minute's peace!"

Mr. Spedding smiled grimly.

"He will have all the peace he wants," said.

"And the vaults—I should have thought that vaults would be the very thing you wanted for this." He tapped the corner of the sheet where was inscribed decorative.

"Plan for the erection of a New Safe Deposit."

"There is the safe," said Mr. Spedding, smiling again.

This William Spedding, now unhappily longer with us—he died suddenly, as I relate—was a large, smooth man with a suave manner. He smoked good cigars, the ends of which he snipped off with a cigar-cutter, and his smile came readily from a man who had no fault to find with him.

To continue the possibly unnecessary details, I may add further that whilst tenders were requested for the erection of the New Safe Deposit, the provision of the advertisement that the lowest tender would not necessarily be accepted was justified by the fact that the offer of Potham & Holloway was approved, and it is an open secret that the tender was the highest of all.

"My client requires the very best work; desires a building that will stand shockingly. Mr. Spedding shot a swift glance at the contractor, who sat at the other side of the desk, and said,

"Something that a footing little dynamite explosion would not scatter to the winds."

The contractor nodded.

"You have read the specification," the solicitor went on—he was cutting a new cigar and in regard to the pedestal—ah—

He stopped and looked at the contractor.

"It seems all very clear," said the builder. He took a bundle of papers from an open bag by his side and read.

"The foundation to be of concrete to the depth twenty feet.... The pedestal to be all stone layers of dressed granite and sandstone.... In the center of a steel-lined compartment, ten inches by five inches, and the depth of the pedestal itself."

The solicitor inclined his head.

"That pedestal is to be the most important thing in the whole structure. The steel is recess—I don't know the technical phrase which one of these days your men will be called to fill in, is the second most important; the safe that is to stand fifty feet above the floor of the building is to be—but the safe arranged for."

An army of workmen, if the hacking phrase be permitted, descended upon Lombard Street and pulled down the old buildings. They pulled them down, and broke them down, and levered them down, and Lombard street grew gray with dust. The interior

The search for it is complicated by plot and counterplot. The mystery is finally solved by extraordinary detective work, matched against the cunning of criminals.

Mr. Spedding smiled grimly. "He will have all the peace he wants," he said.

"And the vaults—I should have thought that vaults would be the very thing you wanted for this." He tapped the corner of the sheet where was inscribed decorously: "Plan for the erection of a New Safe Deposit."

"There is the safe," said Mr. Spedding, and smiled again.

This William Spedding, now unhappily no longer with us—he died suddenly, as I will relate—was a large, smooth man with a sanguine manner. He smoked good cigars, the ends of which he snipped off with a gold-digging-cutter, and his smile came readily, as from a man who had no fault to find with life.

To continue the possibly unnecessary details, I may add further that whilst tenders were requested for the erection of the New Safe Deposit, the provision of the advertisement that the lowest tender would not necessarily be accepted was justified by the fact that the offer of Potham & Holloway was approved, and it is an open secret that their tender was the highest of all.

The contractor nodded. "You have read the specification," the solicitor went on—he was cutting a new cigar, "and in regard to the pedestal—ah—the pedestal, you know?"

"Your client may commence business tomorrow if he wishes."

The solicitor turned from the pedestal. "He is not ready yet," he said softly, as though afraid of the echoes.

He walked to where the big steel doors of the hall stood ajar, the contractor following.

In the vestibule he took two keys from his pocket. The heavy doors swung noiselessly across the entrance, and Mr. Spedding locked them. Through the vestibule and out into the busy street the two men walked, and the solicitor fastened behind him the outer doors.

"My client asks me to convey his thanks to you for your expedition," the lawyer said.

The builder rubbed his hands with some satisfaction.

"You have taken two days less than we expected," Mr. Spedding went on.

The builder was a man of few ideas outside his trade. He said again—

"Yes, your client may start business tomorrow."

The solicitor smiled.

"My client, Mr. Potham, may not—start business—for ten years," he said. "In fact, until—well, until he dies, Mr. Potham."

CHAPTER II.

A MAN turned into Terrington Square from Seymour Street and walked leisurely past the policeman on point duty, bidding him a curt "good night." The officer subsequently described the passer, as a foreign-looking gentleman with a short pointed beard.

Under the light overcoat he was apparently in evening dress, for the officer observed the shoes with a plain black bow, and the white silk muffler and the crush hat supported that view.

The man crossed the road, and disappeared around the corner of the raised garden that forms the center of the square. A belated taxi came past, and an early newspaper cart, taking a short cut to Paddington, followed; then the square was deserted save for the man and the policeman.

The grim, oppressive houses of the square were wrapped in sleep—drawn blinds and shuttered windows and silence.

The man continued his stroll until he came abreast of No. 43. Here he stopped for a second, gave one swift glance up and down the thoroughfare, and mounted the three steps of the house. He fumbled a little with the key, turned it, and entered. Inside he stood for a moment, then taking a small electric lamp from his pocket he switched on the current.

He did not trouble to survey the wide entrance hall, but flashed the tiny beam of light on the inside face of the door. Two thin wires and a small coil fastened to the lintel called forth no comment. One of the wires had been snapped by the opening of the door.

"Burglar-alarm, of course," he murmured approvingly. "All the windows similarly treated, and goodness knows what pitfalls waiting for the unwary."

He flashed the lamp round the hall. A heavy Turkish rug at the foot of the winding staircase secured his attention. He took from his pocket a telescope stick, extended it, and fixed it rigid.

Then he walked carefully towards the rug. With his stick he lifted the corner, and what he saw evidently satisfied him, for he returned to the door, where in a recess stood a small marble statue. All his strength was required to lift this, but he staggered back with it, and rolling it on its circular base, as railway porters roll milk churns, he brought it to the edge of the rug. With a quick push he planted it square in the center of the carpet. For a second only it stood, oscillating, then like a flash it disappeared, and where the carpet had lain was a black, gaping hole.

a raised battle-ax. "I don't like that ax," he murmured, and measured the distance.

Then he saw the fine wire that stretched across the landing. He stepped across carefully, and ranged himself alongside the steel knight.

Slipping off his coat, he reached up and caught the figure by the wrist. Then with a jerk of his foot he snapped the wire.

He had been prepared for the mechanical downfall of the ax; but as the wire broke the figure turned to the right, and swish! came the ax in a semicircular cut. He had thought to hold the arm as it descended, but he might as well have tried to hold the piston-rod of an engine. His hand was wrenching away, and the razor-like blade of the ax missed his head by the fraction of a second.

Then with a whirr the arm rose stiffly again to its original position and remained rigid.

The visitor moistened his lips and sighed.

"That's a new one, a very new one," he said under his breath, and the admiration in his tone was evident. He picked up his overcoat, flung it over his arm, and mounted half a dozen steps to the next landing. The inspection of the Chinese cabinet was satisfactory.

The white beam of his lamp flashed into corners and crevices and showed nothing. He shook the curtain of a window and listened, holding his breath.

"Not here," he muttered decisively, "the old man wouldn't try that game. Snakes turned loose in a house in London, S. W., take a deal of collecting in the morning."

He looked round. From the landing access was gained to three rooms. That which from its position he surmised faced the street he did not attempt to enter. The second, covered by a heavy curtain, he looked at for a time in thought. To the third he walked, and carefully swathing the door-handle with his silk muffler, he turned it. The door yielded. He hesitated another moment, and jerking the door wide open, sprang backward.

The interior of the room was for a second only in pitch darkness, save for the flicker of light that told of an open fireplace. Then the visitor heard a click, and the room was flooded with light. In the darkness on the landing the man waited; then a voice, a cracked old voice, said grumbly—

"Come in."

"Oh, come in, Jimmy—I know ye."

Cautiously the man outside stepped through the entry into the light and faced the old man, who, arrayed in a wadded dressing-gown, sat in a big chair by the fire—an old man, with white face and sneering grin, who sat with his lap full of papers.

The visitor nodded a friendly greeting.

"As far as I can gather, he said deliberately, "we are just above your dressing-room, and if you dropped me through one of your patent traps, Reale, I should fetch up amongst your priceless china."

He made a momentary look of alarm on the old man's face at the mention of the china, he preserved an imperturbable calm, never moving his eyes from his visitor's face.

Then his grin returned, and he motioned the other to a chair on the other side of the fireplace.

"Suspicious?"—the grin broadened—"suspicious of your old friend, Jimmy? The old governor, eh?"

Jimmy made no reply for a moment, then—

"You're a wonder, governor, upon my word you are a wonder. That man in armor Gathering of American, French Notables Was Represented by Country Clothes.

PARIS Nov. 27.

HB hunt of Saint Hubert, the patron saint of huntsmen, in the Forêt d'Halatte, near Senlis, with the united packs of the Comte de Valon and Baron James-Henri de Rothschild, was an unforgettable sight. After the last breakfast at Flurines, a mass was celebrated in the seventeenth century chapel of Saint Christophe, which is attached to the manor house converted from the old Monastery of Saint Christophe by Lady Michelham, who is joint master of bounds with Comte de Valon.

American, French and British society were well represented. Lady Michelham received her guests wearing the hunt dress, a dark blue habit trimmed with royal blue and crimson and gold braid and the little tricorn hat with cut ostrich feathers that has been the traditional hunting hat for ladies in France since the days of Louis XVI. Baroness James de Rothschild wore the Rothschild uniform of bright blue with yellow facings and gold braid.

The lady guests who hunted were the traditional black habit and tall hat or hard bowler felt. Miss Baruch, an accomplished American horsewoman, was among the followers.

The gathering was representative of smart country clothes. Princess Ilyinskaya, the former Miss Audrey Emery, wife of Grand Duke Dimitri, wore a beige tweed tailored dress with the smartest hip-length coat of beige breit-schwarz, and a small beige felt cloak trimmed with self-colored incrustations.

Mrs. Neal, another well-known American, older by hours, who followed this time in an automobile, was a chic tailor made of hunter's green with a wide wrap-over pleat on one side, and small dark green felt bootee. Her blue jersey sweater matched the heavy woolen scarf swathed round her neck.

Another smart American had a suit of horizon blue angora kasha with strappings of the same material on the short coat. She carried a long overcoat of the same color trimmed with castor and a small black felt hat.

Baroness Robert de Rothschild had a smart ensemble from Vionnet in beige tweed trimmed with castor and a beige Rebour touque with the brim rolled back off the eyes.

Several women wore lacquer red and a few the new brick red that is so fashionable in Paris just now. The predominating note, however, was greyish blue or green usually trimmed with flat fur, castor, summer ermine or caracul, a great

HOW TO DRESS ON $250 A YEAR

Decorating the Closet Shelves

THE silk lingerie that every woman wears today should find a fitting place to stay when it emerges properly sudsed and ironed and looking like new. All sorts of fascinating things are being sold for the decorating of shelves. But if you don't feel quite up—mentally speaking—to indulging yourself in this way some of them could be made by your very own hands. Those that could not be are so inexpensive that you don't care anyhow.

Checked taffeta is very smart to lay upon the shelf as a pad, with a sheer edging made of the same material scalloped and piped in a color. If you like extra touches, you might add tiny ribbon flowers or bow-knots at intervals in the scallops.

Dotted Swiss is another of the materials that can be used for this purpose. You might keep the pad plain, lining it with a thin white lawn. The other sides or ruffles should be edged with lace.

For those shelves which hold the more commonplace belongings or household things, checked or plaid ginghams are very attractive with bindings of solid color.

Some of the shelf edgings are worked out in two colors. Two sets of scallops are made—one of yellow, we'll say and one of green. These are sewed onto a band so that the curves do not coincide—the point of one disclosing the scallop of the other. The scheme is worked out in fabrics or in colored officio and is very effective.

For the kitchen shelves all sorts of printed cloths are shown with cunning decorations of field flowers or bright colored fruits, at very reasonable prices.

Designed to rise to 1200 feet above the street level, a building now being erected in New York will have sixty high speed elevators, two of them being express to the eighty-second floor.

What Was Worn at the Hunt of Saint Hubert

Gathering of American, French and British Notables Was Representative of Smart Country Clothes.

Special cable by Pierre LeBaux, director of the Paris Fashion Board, and E. Winifred Bouler, associate director.

PARIS, Nov. 27. THE hunt of Saint Hubert, the patron saint of hunters, in the Forêt d'Hezoué, near Senlis, with itsimitated the Château de Valen and Baron James Henri de Rothschild, was an unforgettable sight. After the hunt breakfast at Fleureins, a mass was celebrated in the seventeenth century chapel of Saint Christophe, which is attached to the manor house converted from the old Monastery of Saint Christophe by Lady Michelin, who is joint master of bonds with Comte de Valen.

American, French and British society were well represented. Lady Michelin received her guests wearing the hunt dress, a dark blue habit trimmed with royal blue and crimson and gold braid and the little tricorn hat with curled ostrich feathers that has been the traditional hunting hat for ladies in France since the days of Louis XVI. Baroness James de Rothschild wore the Rothschild uniform of bright blue with yellow facings and gold braid.

The lady guests who hunted were the traditional blue habit and tall or hard bowler felt. Miss Baruch, an accomplished American horsewoman, was amongst the followers.

The gathering was representative of smart country clothes. Princess Ilynska, the former Miss Audrey Emery, wife of Grand Duke Dimitri, wore a beige tweed doublet overcoat with the smartest hip-length coat of beige breitwanz, and a small beige felt stooge trimmed with self-colored incrustations.

Mrs. Neal, another well-known American rider to hounds, who followed this time in an automobile, was a chic taylor made of hunter's green with a hip-length coat, skirt with a wide wrap-over pleat on one side, and small dark green felt stooge. Her blue jersey sweater matched the heavy woolen scarf wrapped round her neck.

Another smart American had a suit of horizon blue angora kasha with strappings of the same material in the short coat. She carried a long overcoat of the same color trimmed with castor and a small blue felt stooge.

Vicomtesse Henri de Janze had a gray suiting tailor made with a light red line overcheck, made with a double-breasted coat and skirt with wide box pleats sewn down half way to the knee.

Baron Robert de Rothschild had a smart ensemble from Vionnet in beige tweed trimmed with castor and a beige Rebourg touque with the brim rolled back off the tulle.

Several women wore lacquer red and a few the new brick red that is so fashionable in Paris just now. The predominating note, however, was greyish blue or green, usually trimmed with flat fur, castor, summerine or caracul, and a great

Cubby Squalls

For all mistakes we have to pay.
Alas! There is no other way.

—Cubby

CUBBY has found out for himself. Of course, his mother could have told him that this was true. Almost anyone with experience could have told him. But almost everyone has to find it out for himself. It was just so with Cubby.

He had made the mistake of not looking closely enough at the big footprints in the snow that he had been following. Had he looked at them he would have known at once that they were not made by Mother Bear. But just because they were big footprints Cubby took it for granted that they were Mother Bear's. So, galloping along carelessly, he ran around a great windfall and almost headlong into a great big bear who was not his mother at all. In fact, the big bear was his father, Buster Bear. But Cubby didn't recognize his father and Buster didn't recognize Cubby.

For perhaps one minute they stood staring at each other. Then with a growl—rumbley growl—big Buster Bear jumped toward Cubby. Cubby gave a frightened yell and started up the nearest tree. My goodness, how he did go up that tree!

Chatterer the Red Squirrel never went up a tree any faster than did Cubby. And he kept right on going just as far as he could go. And when he found he could get no farther he began to bawl. Yes, sir, he did so. He began to bawl. You see, he was a very scared little bear, so being as badly scared he just had to bawl.

Buster Bear came over to the foot of the tree and looked up. All the time he was growing up a rumbley growl of his. Then he sat up on his hind feet, and very tall he was as he reached up and dug the claws of his fore feet into the bark of that tree. Yes, sir, you would have thought just that. It was all because Cubby was so badly frightened.

The moment his father dug his claws into the bark of that tree, Cubby was sure that he was just as good as cog-ight. Little bears are like some little boys ready to cry before they are hurt.

The Mystery of the Missing Word

EDGAR WALLACE

• SMALL MAYNARD &amp; CO.

"If he'd come first, Jimmy!" Old Reale wrung his hands in his regret. "I suppose he'd jumped the rug—any sneak thief could have done that—d'ye think he'd have spotted the man? I know he'd only get the man in armor ready again."

"Put your pistol down, Massey," said Jimmy coolly, "unless you want something to play with. Old man Reale's too ill for the gymnasitics you suggest, and I'm not inclined to oblige him."

The man blustered.

"By God, if you try any of your monkey tricks with me, either of you—oh, I'm only a visitor like yourself! I could have a chap that went in for inventions and puzzles. D'ye remember the table at Suez?"

Massey was growing impatient as Jimmy's reminiscences proceeded. He had come that night with an object; he had taken a big risk, and had not lost sight of the fact. Now he broke in:

"Darn your puzzles, Reale. I'm about me; never mind about Jimmy. What's all this muddle about two million each of us?"

"What? When you broke up the place in Egypt you said we should stand in when the time came. Well, the time's come!"

"Nearly, nearly," said Reale, with his death-head grin. "It's nearly come. You needn't have troubled to see me. My lawyer's got your addresses. I'm nearly through." he went on, cheerfully: "D'ye think I'll be in six months, as sure as—as death? Then you fellers will get the money—say, say, say! to give them to his widow—your Jimmy, or Massey or Connor—or the young lady. You say you don't like puzzles, Massey? Well, it's a swine, what an overfed, lumbering fool of a pig was Mr. Massey!"

He sank back into the depths of his chair exhausted.

"You are a clever un, we know," he began, and the old man, who had recovered his composure, nodded.

"I'm down, Mr. Massey," he snapped; "sit down, my fine fellas, an' tell us all the news. Jimmy an' me was just speakin' about you, an' Jimmy was saying what a fine gentleman you was—" his voice grew shrill—"what a swine, what an overfed, lumbering fool of a pig was Mr. Massey!"

Lonely, emaciated by repeated attacks of ague, often terrified by the roughness of the sailors and the dirt and gloom of his quarters on shipboard, young Horatio yet liked the sea. By the time he was fifteen he had made trips to the East Indies and the Arctic, and was an experienced seaman.

"Nearly, nearly," said Reale, springing to his feet.

"Sit down!" It was Jimmy that spoke, and Reale obeyed.

"There's a punch about these two millions," Reale went on, and his croaky voice, with its harsh cockney accent, grew raucous in his enjoyment of Massey's perplexity and Jimmy's knit brows.

"An' the one that finds the puzzle out gets the money."

Had he been less engrossed in his own amusement he would have seen a change in Massey's brute face that would have warned him.

"It's in, it's in!" he went on.

"I'm goin' to set the sharp against the flats; the touts of the gamblin' hell—that's you fellers against the pigeons. Two of the biggest pigeons is dead, an' one's dying. Well, he's got a daughter; let's see what she can do. When I'm dead"—

"That's now!" bellowed Massey, and leaned over and wrung the old man's hand.

Jimmy, on his feet, saw the gash of the knife in Massey's hand, and reached for his pocket.

Massey's pistol cracked him, and the man's face was a dreadful thing to look upon.

"Hands up! It's God's truth I'll kill you if you don't!"

"He's got the money here," breathed Massey, "somewhere in this house."

"You're mad," said the other contemptuously. "Why did you hit him?"

"He sat there makin' a fool of himself with the knife in Massey's hand, and reached for his pocket."

The old man's eyes wandered round the room till they rested on what looked like a switchboard.

"See that handle marked 'seven,'" he whispered.

Dry the feet well with warm towels, wrap the cakewalk parts with coarse sandpaper. After the topmost layer of hardened skin are removed, it is sometimes necessary to do the rest of the scraping with a finer textured sandpaper. And if the skin is unusually sensitive, the final scraping should be done with pumice stones.

Walking logically demands shoes specially built for that purpose, shoes with substantial soles and with heels so constructed that the entire weight of the body does not have to be borne by one part of the foot exclusively—in other words low or medium-sized heels.

By way of additional protection, people who spend most of their days either standing or walking should begin the day with a cold foot bath.

Escalloped Tomatoes.

Take a cupful of freshly grated American cheese and a cupful of dry fine crumbs. Mix add a level teaspoonful of salt, a saltspoonful of red pepper, a heaping tablespoonful of sugar and a saltspoonful of curry powder. Rub the inside of a pudding dish with a cut bud of garlic and butter it well. Put in a layer of sliced tomatoes, pared, sprinkle with the cheese mixture, dot with a little butter, then more cheese. Turn in this way until the dish is full, covering the cheese and crumbs on top. Pour a tablespoonful of onion juice and the juice strained from the tomatoes when they were pared. Bake for 25 minutes, delicately browning the top.

"Lookin' for money?" gasped the old man, and something like a smile crossed his face. "Safe's up there," he whispered, and smiled again. "Got the keys?"

The old man's eyes wandered round the room till they rested on what looked like a switchboard.

"See that handle marked 'seven,'" he whispered.

"Pull it down, Jimmy boy." His voice was growing fainter. "This is a new one that I read in a book. Pull it down."

"Why?"

"Do you tell me?" the lips motioned. And Jimmy walked across the room and pulled over the insulated lever.

"There are the keys. You stay here," said Massey, and went off closing the door after him.

Jimmy heard the noise of a key, and knew he was a prisoner. He lay motionless. Jimmy tried the pulse, and felt a faint flutter. Through the clenched teeth he forced a little whisky, and after a minute the old man's eyes opened.

And the discovery of the two dead men in the upper chambers the next morning afforded the evening press the sensation of the year.

"Jimmy!" he whispered; then remonstrating, "Where's Massey?" he added.

"And Connor," said Massey thickly, "and Connor's worse than me. I'm reasonable, Reale; I'd take a fair share—"

"You would, would you?"

The old man was grinning again.

"Well, your share's exactly a million—an' three-quarters in solid cash—an' a bit over two millions-all."

He paused to notice the effect of his words.

"An' it's Jimmy's share, an' Connor's share, an' it's Miss Katharine's share."

This was the effect was better. Into Jimmy's inexhaustive face had crept a gleam of interest.

"Kent!" he asked quickly.

"Wasn't that the name of the man?"

Old Reale chuckled.

"The very feller, Jimmy."

He pointed to an old-fashioned walnut cabinet that stood near the door. "D'ye see anything—a thing that looks like a windmill?"

Jimmy drew out a cardboard structure that was apparently a toy

ANSWERS TO QUERIES
With Valet Service

TWO London girls, one a Fleet street journalist, the other a personal comedy actress, tired of their joie have opened a Women's Valet Service in the West. And so quickly that already they find their premises too small.

The girls' valet service undertakes to darn, patch, press and clean silk underclothes. It also cleans jewelry, freshens up hats, removes shoulder straps, and returns things in the lost days.

The shop looks like a beauty parlor. Curtains match, softly tinted walls. All the laundering goes on in an airy room at the back, where a French woman presides. The partners occupy the parlor and are dressed to harmonize with it. One runs the mending and the other the business side of the concern.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By Members of the St. Louis Bar Association)

INDIAN NO. 1—The will is good if it has two witnesses. This is not good if it has only one witness. There is no fixed price for writing a will.

IN DOUBT—If the woman in question should die intestate her former husband would have the right to share in proceeds of her estate, either real or personal.

A. B. C.—It is against the law for a girl under 16 to work in a factory, though having a permit, if she is to work around machinery or in dangerous places.

MR. H. C.—There was such a law as referred to, but it has been repealed. The wife of the husband-laws before the marriage was repealed he should get a divorce.

H. J. S.—A city ordinance requires that from Oct. 1 to May 1, temperature of 70 degrees be maintained from 7 a.m. to 10:30 p.m., and that 60 degrees be maintained from 10:30 p.m. to 7 a.m.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

WORRIED—So long as you are under the care of a physician you should follow his advice and confide yourself to him. If after a proper trial, you are not sufficiently benefited, you are still free to seek the services of another physician or change of doctors without giving offense. As far as one is able to determine, the best possible doctor is the one recommended for you.

S. H. O.—It is possible that a small nerve was injured causing local neuritis, or that there is a condition of pressure on its nerve by the contraction of muscle on the surrounding tissue. If due to nerves, relief should be had by a local medical application of heat, and certain light rays, with electrical treatment. The hydro-sulphuric department of the Hospital is especially well equipped for such treatment. If due to pressure, some relief may be obtained by the foregoing measures, and if not, it becomes a case for surgical measures.

Lady's Maid Is Town Councillor

NOTHING helped better than the election of a domestic servant to be Town Councillor of Bootle, a Lancashire suburb, to make England realize that times are changing and that "common" young women are playing a more and more important role in public affairs.

Miss Lily Thorpe, 22, a lady's maid, is to represent the people of Linacre Ward in the Bootle city government during the next three years. She is a member of the Labor party and will continue her work as a servant during the time she helps to run the town's affairs. She is the youngest Councillor in England, and will not be permitted by law to vote until she is 30 years old.

FATHER AND SON TO JAIL FOR DRUG STORE LIQUOR SALE

Charles and Chelton Remington of 4501 Olive Street Get 30 Days and $400 Fine Each.

EACH TO SERVE TERM IN TURN

Elder to Manage Business Till Younger Is Freed — Another Son Just Finished Like Sentence.

Charles Remington will manage the Remington Drug Co., 4501 Olive street, for the next 30 days while his son, Chelton, is serving a sentence in the Warrenton, Mo., jail for the illegal sale and possession of liquor at the store. Upon his son's return, he will take charge of the business, while the father goes to jail on a similar sentence.

This arrangement was approved for business reasons by Federal Judge Davis today in sentencing the Remingtons to jail and fining each $400 on their pleas of guilty. The son was bound over to the marshal and the father was released on bail until Jan. 3.

Charles Remington is about 45 years old; his son is about 27. They are officers of the Remington Drug Co., a $10,000 corporation.

Second son, Charles F. Remington, who has a drug store at McCausland and Mitchell avenue, was released from the St. Charles jail last week. It is understood his family cared for his business in his absence. He pleaded guilty, Oct. 15, to illegal sale and possession of liquor, and was sentenced to 20 days in jail and fined $400.

The two stores were raided June 16 by Federal agents after a prohibition agent new to St. Louis had reported buying pints of whisky and synthetic gin repeatedly at both places, without prescription. Proceeding to revoke the liquor permits of the stores are pending.

HENRY W. SAVAGE, THEATRICAL PRODUCER, DIES IN BOSTON

Henry W. Savage, theatrical producer, died today at the Philip House of the Massachusetts General Hospital, after an illness of several weeks. He was 68 years old.

He built the Castle Square Theater in Boston in 1894, and began as manager by presenting grand opera in English. His first venture in New York was with grand opera at the American Theater in 1900. Since that time he had devoted himself largely to musical comedy.

Although for many years identified with real estate development in Boston, Mr. Savage attained prominence under the name of Henry W. Savage, Inc., his theater operations as a theatrical producer. Among the productions which he sponsored were Wagner's "Parsifal" (in English), "The Prince of Pilsen," "The Merry Widow" and "Madame Butterly."

For the last two years he had been inactive in the theatrical field. He maintained a home at Jensen, Fla., and passed much of his time there.

He had been a patient at the hospital here several times since last spring, entering it for the last time in April.

London Night Club Raided.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—The London police—its representatives apparently garbed in civilian dress—conducted a crusade against night clubs which are suspected of overstepping the bounds of the law. The latest club to be raided is Montmartre Club, a branch West End resort. The raiders raided the club in the early hours of this morning and took the names of a number of men and women present. Dancing was in progress when the raid occurred.
